FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE—

Combat Arms Advisory Group
BY MAJ. GEN. JOHN M. LENTZ, USA
Chief, Combat Arms Advisory Group,
Ft. Monroe, Va.

ONE of the major responsibilities of General John R. Hodge as Chief of Army Field Forces is to insure that all individuals and units utilized by the Army in the field are effectively trained and are maintained in operational readiness. He is charged by the Department of the Army with acting as a coordinating agency for all training inspections within the realm of Army Field Forces training responsibilities. In order to fulfill his responsibilities to the fullest extent, General Hodge has organized a staff section at his headquarters known as "Combat Arms Advisory Group." This group has replaced the "Inspectors of Infantry, Armor, and Artillery" established in 1950. It was organized last fall and redesignated the "Combat Arms Advisory Group."

Maj. Gen. Lentz

The actual function of this group is to determine, by visits to the field, the state of training and degree of operational readiness of units of Infantry, Artillery and Armor, and to keep General Hodge informed on matters pertaining to the Combat Arms with a view to attaining the end objective of a ground battle team of the highest order of effectiveness. Recommendations are made, based on field visits, and studies of accumulated reports directed toward improvement in training, weapons, equipment, organization and tactics.

This group which I head is specifically charged with the planning and conduct of training inspections and staff visits of Infantry, Armor, and Artillery units and with the coordination of all inspections and staff visits made by the Office, Chief of Army Field Forces (OCAFF). In performing this task, I am assisted by all staff sections of Army Field Forces.

The former Chief of Army Field Forces, General Mark W. Clark, was instrumental in organizing the Combat Arms Advisory Group. He concurred in a recommendation made by Lt. Gen. Raymond S. McLain (USA-Ret.), who suggested, while President of the Field Artillery Association, that such a group be constituted under either the Army's Chief of Staff or the Chief of Army Field Forces.

On 26 Sept. 1950, at Army Field Forces Headquarters, the Inspectors of Infantry.

Shortage of Flight Training Volunteers Critical Concern to Armed Services

The Armed Forces—with the exception of the Army—are finding it difficult to obtain volunteers for flight training. The situation is bad and promises to get worse, according to Pentagon experts.

Officials of the Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps all report serious concern with the dwindling number of applications from young men of outstanding physical and mental qualifications for flying training.

The Army, with relatively small requirements and a large force on which to draw, alone has a large backlog of qualified applicants for duties as pilots of liaison aircraft and helicopters.

The Army has about 2,200 pilots and roughly 2,000 planes which may be doubled in the next several years. Army pilots hold ranks from warrant officer, junior grade, to brigadier general (W. Wallace Ford). Members of the House Appropriations Committee have suggested that pilot billets should be given to enlisted men also.

But if the Army currently has all the pilots it needs and plenty of applications besides, the picture is quite different in the other Services.

That is one of the main reasons why the Services are anxiously awaiting the official report of the Department of Defense Incentive Pay Commission. The JOURNAL reported last week that a bid for an increase in flight pay to spur applications was turned down. It was reported, however, that flight pay would not be cut as recommended by such antagonists as Senator Paul Douglas (D-Ill.) on Capitol Hill, if the Commission's recommendations are upheld.

Here is a rundown on the flying training application situation as reported by

House Group Amends Promotion Rider

The House Armed Services Committee in order to prevent threatened demonstrations on 1 April of more than 5,000 Navy lieutenants this week endorsed legislation which would repeal the Davis Amendment and substitute new limitations on the number of field grade and general officers from 1 April until 1 July.

At the same time, a subcommittee was named to report a bill to the full committee to amend the Officer Personnel Act of 1947. This promises to be one of the most comprehensive personnel studies in Capitol Hill in the last five years.

Details of Davis Amendment testimony presented to the Committee by Service spokesmen are reported elsewhere in this issue.

The Committee's proposed legislation provides that on 30 June, the commissioned officer personnel on active duty in the Armed Forces (excluding reserve officers on active duty training or reserve officers ordered to active duty for 30 days or less) shall not exceed the following numbers in each grade:

Two-Month Probe Set For Defense Dept. Org.

Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, after conferring with President Eisenhower, on 19 Feb. announced creation of a committee to study and make recommendations to him by 30 April on the best ways of improving the organization of the Department of Defense.

Creation of such a committee was promised by President Eisenhower during the political campaign.

Members of the Committee are: Nelson A. Rockefeller, chairman; Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, the President's brother who is president of Pennsylvania State College; Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, renowned manpower expert; Robert A. Lovett, former Secretary of Defense; Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, USAF; Dr. Vannevar Bush, president of Carnegie Institution, and General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Mr. Lovett had much to say about reorganization of the Department of Defense in a letter to former President Truman, which received widespread attention. General Sarnoff has been studying military manpower problems. Dr. Bush has delivered speeches and written articles recently in which he has called for reorganization of the Defense Department, notably the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

General Bradley in August will complete four years as JCS Chairman and will give to the Committee the benefit of his experience in the top military post.

Mr. Rockefeller, Dr. Eisenhower and Dr. Flemming have been working on government reorganization problems for the past several months.

In his major campaign address on National Defense, President Eisenhower

Cut Forces "At Least" 10%, SecDef Is Told

(Text of Report, Page 753)

Less than a week before the House Appropriations Committee is scheduled to begin hearings on the fiscal '54 defense budget providing a force of 3.6 million men and women in uniform and $41.5 billion for the Services, Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson has received a recommendation from the Sarnoff Commission for a minimum cut of 10 per cent in civilian and military manpower, money and material.

According to Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, USAF, commission chairman, "these substantial savings could mean the difference between a balanced and unbalanced National Budget."

General Sarnoff sent to Secretary Wilson on 18 Feb. the conclusion of the Commission that "an over-all reduction of at least 10 per cent in men, money and material can be achieved in the Department of Defense without diminishing the required combat effectiveness of our Armed Forces."

"We recommend this as a minimum Target for the Secretary of Defense to set at this time," the Commission declared, but added "that this reduction in Manpower and money cannot be made overnight."

The Commission said, however, that based on the present military program, its objective would mean possible savings of 500,000 civilian and military manpower and $5 billion annually."

It is certain that when Service witnesses are called before the House Appropriations Committee to testify on the '54 budget—hearings begin 24 Feb.—they will be asked about the Sarnoff Commission's recommendation for a 10 per cent slash.

Until Secretary Wilson makes known quickly his reaction to this recommendation, it will be difficult for officials of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps to give their opinions on the findings of the Citizens Advisory Commission on Manpower Utilization in the Armed Services, the official name of the group which was headed by General Sarnoff, chairman of the board of the Radio Corporation of America.

The report was made not to the various Services, but to Mr. Wilson and any implementation resulting from the recommendations must come from him. Therefore, until he acts, the Services will undoubtedly be chary of giving detailed responses to questions concerning the report.

Meantime, from Capitol Hill sources comes word that the Pentagon leaders will be interrogated as to the reason for a 10 per cent recommendation, instead of, for example, 8 or 12 per cent.

The answer probably will not come until General Sarnoff himself is called to testify, probably before the Senate

Ground & Air Action In Korea Steps Up

The tempo in Korea quickened perceptibly this week, both on the ground and in the air. Fighter-bombers, striking against supply, communications and power facilities in North Korea, scored heavy successes. Russian-built MIG's once again ventured across the Yalu River and suffered substantial losses. Meanwhile, ground action along the 155-mile front, stepped up considerably, but nevertheless was limited to sharp patrol stabs.

Naval Bombardment

Off the North Korean eastern coast, units of the Seventh Fleet entered the third year of naval bombardment of the important port and communications city of Wonsan. Shells were thrown into the port by the heavy cruiser Toledo and the destroyers Ulvert, Moore and Wedderrburn.

UN planes on Thursday bombed, through heavy clouds, enemy supply areas and communications lines behind the western front. Air action the next day was curtailed by dense clouds and showers, but B-26 night intruders and B-29 Superforts raked front line positions and struck enemy supply convoys and an airfield in North Korea.

Along the battleline Saturday, planes knocked out 15 enemy bunkers, 25 supply dumps and 41 troop shelters. Over 230 yards of trenches were ripped up. Meanwhile, for the first time in almost a week, MIG's swooped down from Manchurian bases and gave battle to U. S. Sabre jets. Returning pilots reported they were outnumbered 27 to 17, but managed nevertheless to shoot down one plane. This "kill" was accredited to Col. Royal Baker, commander of the Fourth Fighter Interceptor Wing, who thus became the third "double ace" of the war, with 10 enemy craft to his score.

Blast Generators

Communist attempts to reactivate the huge Supung hydroelectric plant, once one of the world's greatest power generating sites supplying much of North Korea and Manchuria, were thwarted Sunday when two dozen F-84 Thunderjet planes blasted two generators of the plant. The hydroelectric center was put out of commission last June when 600 Allied planes rained a devastating load of bombs on it.

Meanwhile, other fighter-bombers dropped bombs and rockets on two rail bridges on the enemy lines in northwest Korea between the Yalu and the Chongchon Rivers. A third rail bridge was attacked, but results weren't observed. Aerial clashes over MIG Alley netted UN flyers two MIG's destroyed, probably another destroyed, and four more damaged.

The next day, Monday, the fighter-bombers again were out. The target this time was an enemy troop assembly and supply concentrations at Kyomipo, southwest of the North Korean capital of Pyongyang. Over 200 planes participated in the raid, and pilots reported the target area was left in a "sea of smoke and fire." Fifth Air Force announced 96 buildings in the area had been flattened. In a day-long aerial battle to the north, Sabre jets, screening the fighter-bombers, destroyed or damaged 11 Communist MIG's.

On Tuesday, fighter-bombers again swarmed over supply stores and communications in North Korea, and Sabre jet pilots reported shooting down one MIG and damaging another.

On Wednesday, 379 fighter-bombers made the war's second largest all jet attack on a single target as wave after wave of planes pounded a Communist tank and infantry training center at Kangso, 15 miles west-southwest of Pyongyang. Almost 4000 tons of high explosives were dropped, and pilots were credited with demolishing 189 buildings. Several secondary explosives were set off, indicating hits on enemy ammunition or fuel supplies. Flying far north to protect the raiders, Sabre jets tangled with a group of MIG's and reported five enemy planes shot down and two others destroyed in a manner not immediately clarified.

Ground Attack Thwarted

On the ground, Friday, Allied guns and infantry turned back seven enemy attacks, inflicting an estimated 200 Communist casualties.

On the Chinese New Year's Day Saturday, the heaviest fighting occurred near Old Baldy. An Allied outpost was attacked by a Chinese company, and for a time had to surrender. Reinforcements came under heavy attack, and the defenders were forced to retreat, but artillery and mortars hammered the Chinese until they withdrew. When the battle was over, UN troops counted an estimated 70 casualties.

The following day, South Korean troops were pushed from an advanced position east of the Pukhan River. Enemy forces held the outpost for a few hours before heavy artillery pounding forced a retreat.

Fighting then subsided across the front until Tuesday when Eighth Army forces repulsed nine small but fierce Communist thrusts. South Korean troops set off new-type jelled-gasoline mines in front of their positions in holding off Chinese troops in a 40-minute battle on the central front.

Col. Scobey To FEC

Col. Joseph W. Scobey, Senior Army Instructor for the U. S. Army Reserves in Virginia, has received orders transferring him to the Far East as a Civil Affairs Officer. He came to the Virginia Military District at Richmond in December 1951 from Camp A. P. Hill, where he was commanding officer for six months.

Court Decision Holds Korea Not "War"; Directs Payment of Insurance.

Former President Truman's description of the Korean conflict as a "police action" was upheld as legally correct this week by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court which ruled, in a 4 to 2 decision, that the military operation could not be termed a "war" in the constitutional sense.

It directed the Pennsylvania Mutual Life Insurance Company to pay off the beneficiaries named in two policies of men killed while serving in the Army.

The decision sustained a ruling by the State Superior Court which had reversed the Allegheny County Pleas Court in one case, and the Luzerne County Pleas Court in another.

The face value of one policy in the name of Andrew Beley, of Allegheny County, was $1000. Mr. Beley was killed in Korea on 7 March 1951. His beneficiary was Mrs. Julia Beley, his mother. The policy contained a double indemnity clause in case of accidental death. It also provided that the insurance company would not be liable "in event that the insured engaged in military or naval service in time of war."

The other policy for $2500 was taken out by Clyde P. Harding, and was payable to his wife, Mrs. Catherine Harding. Mr. Harding was killed 11 Sept. 1950, in a railroad accident while on the way with the 28th Division, Pennsylvania National Guard, to Camp Atterbury, Ind. The policy also had a double indemnity provision, but did not contain a war exemption clause.

The company paid the face value of the policy, but refused to pay the additional death insurance because, it said, under that provision, it would not assume liability in time of war.

The insurance company maintained that the Korean action was in reality a war since what had started as a minor policy action had developed into a "sanguinary struggle of grave proportions."

However, the majority opinion, written by Chief Justice Horace Stern, pointed out that military forces were operating in Korea, but added that there was not, nor ever has been, any declaration of war by Congress against any other country, state or nation, but merely a dispatch to Korea by Presidential order of military, naval and air forces of the United States in accordance with the provisions of the Charter of the United Nations and the recommendations of the Security Council.

"The courts would be utterly at sea, whenever the question arose as to whether certain 'shootings' or expeditions in which United States forces were engaged constituted war."

A dissenting opinion was delivered by Justice John Bell, Jr.

4,748 Army Promotions Delayed by Davis Rider

The House Armed Services Committee was told this week that 2333 Army lieutenants are being denied advancement to the grade of captain because of the Davis Amendment and that a total of 4748 promotions in all grades are being delayed.

This testimony was presented by Brig. Gen. Herbert P. Powell, USA, Acting Deputy Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1.

He said that temporary promotions to field grades are now possible "only on a limited scale" and pointed out that present recommended lists which were selected in the summer of 1951 will not be exhausted until the summer or fall of 1953.

When these lists were established, said General Powell, it was expected that all officers listed would be promoted before 1 July 1952.

Promotion Stagnation

He said that this "stagnation" increased the active duty service in grade for promotion to the next higher grade to about 9 years for lieutenant colonels, 7 years for majors, 6 years for captains and 5 years for first lieutenants "and has had a marked adverse effect upon the morale, and consequently the effectiveness, of the Officer Corps, Regular and Reserve alike."

Said General Powell:

"Opportunity for temporary promotion is a powerful inducement for reserve component officers to volunteer for continued active service and the lack of such opportunity has the reverse effect. Whereas about 30% of those officers ordered to active duty without their consent during FY 1951 and 1952 subsequently volunteered to remain on active duty by transferring to voluntary categories, now in FY 1953 about 20% of all reserve component officers serving on active duty are declining to accept indefinite reserve appointments and, therefore, must be released as their five-year reserve appointments terminate."

General Powell said the Army believes that, after its requirements by grade are properly established and included in the budget estimate for a particular fiscal year, the funds appropriated constitute sufficient control over the grade structure during that year to carry out the will of the Congress.

"These funds are based upon the total average military strength for that year which, in turn, is based upon a finite beginning and end strength for each grade," he said. "These strengths are specified in the budget estimates and furthermore the end strength by grade for one fiscal year must be the same as the beginning strength by grade for the next fiscal year. Under such a budgetary control, some flexibility is possible during the fiscal year to meet and absorb changing requirements in each grade within funds available.

Arbitrary Limitation

"The superimposition of a legislative restriction such as the Davis Amendment on the grade structure in an Appropriation Act has a more severe effect than intended and creates an arbitrary limitation which is extremely difficult to administer.

"Since our officer corps will for the most part soon be on a voluntary basis, the procurement and retention of capable officers becomes increasingly difficult. Officers denied promotion opportunities inevitably suffer a lowered morale and consequently a lowered efficiency in spite of their most conscientious efforts. A 'penny-wise' promotion policy cannot help but contribute to a 'pound foolish' defense of our country."

UNIFORMS IN D. C.

Documents made public this week by the Sarnoff Manpower Commission reveal the suggestion by a short-time member that officers on duty in Washington "may well dispense with the wearing of uniforms except for ceremonial purposes." This was suggested by Brig. Gen. Robert W. Johnson, USAR.

All Military Funds Cut From Money Bill

The House Appropriations Committee this week endorsed requests for supplemental funds by military officials, including additional promotions for Army enlisted men and a 3,000 increase in the number of Army officers, but said that the money must come from appropriations previously voted for other purposes.

The Defense Department asked a total of $1.2 billion, almost all of it attributable to four Acts of Congress signed into law either during or after consideration of the fiscal 1953 budget.

These laws include the Cost-of-Living pay increase, Combat Pay, the Armed Forces Reserve Act, with its increased uniform allowances, and the Mustering-out Pay.

The House subcommittee which considered the request, and which responded sympathetically to data presented by the Services, recommended that no new money be voted because of statements made by Defense Department officials that "this total budgeted request could

Schools to Study Effect Of Impact of Aviation

A continuing program, designed to create better understanding in the nation's schools of the historical, economic, social, political and military aspects of aviation, has been announced jointly by the National Aviation Education Council and the Aircraft Industries Association.

Unique feature of the program is that it will be undertaken by working groups of teachers of the various school grades and, ultimately, of college level. Financed by the Aircraft Industries Association and directed by the materials of instruction committee of NAEC, the program contemplates assembly of all pertinent information, evaluation by the working groups and ultimate interpretation and preparation of the materials for school use.

First effects to be felt in the schools, according to Dr. Leslie A. Bryan, president of NAEC, probably will be in the first year in the elementary grades, with some materials developed for the secondary grades. In ensuing years, the studies will give increasing emphasis to secondary grade and college levels.

Admiral DeWitt C. Ramsey, USN (Ret.), president of the Aircraft Industries Association, reported that two boards had been appointed to administer the program—a policy board and a planning and advisory board. First meetings of these boards will be held in late February, he said.

The policy board has as its chairman Ken Ellington of Republic Aviation Corporation, who is also chairman of the AIA Aviation Education Subcommittee. Other members are Admiral Ramsey; Dr. Bryan; Evan Evans, chairman of the NAEC materials of instruction committee and also superintendent of the Hickory Grove-Overland Park Schools of Kansas; and other members of the AIA Aviation Education Subcommittee who are: John A. Canaday, Lockheed Aircraft Corporation; W. A. Mara, Bendix Aviation Corporation; Roger C. Fleming, Allison Division of General Motors Corporation; and William Wagner, Ryan Aeronautical Company.

Chairman of the planning and advisory board is Mr. Evans, and the other members of this board are Mr. Ellington and the members of the materials of instruction committee of NAEC, who are: Robert W. Eaves, Elementary School Principals Association; Lloyd P. Young, American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education; Willis C. Brown, U. S. Office of Education; and Dr. H. E. Mehrens, Civil Aeronautics Administration. Another member, from the industry, will be appointed later.

Justice Code Progress Brought Under Scrutiny

The man who played a key role in the drafting of the Uniform Code of Military Justice, Mr. Felix E. Larkin, former Defense Department General Counsel, has been named to a civilian committee which will study progress made under two years' operation of the code.

The committee has been appointed by Chief Justice Robert E. Quinn of the U. S. Court of Military Appeals.

The mission of the commission, whose chairman is Mr. Whitney N. Seymour, past president of the Association of the Bar of New York, is to recommend improvements in the code, which went into effect for all the Armed Forces on 31 May 1951.

In addition to Mr. Seymour and Mr. Larkin, other members are Ralph G. Boyd, Army Brigadier General, Reserve, Boston, Mass.; Henry T. Dorrance, former Army colonel, Utica, N. Y.; J. A. McClain, Jr., former general counsel of the Wabash Railroad and presently dean of Duke University Law School, Durham, N. C.; George Spiegelberg former chairman of the Special Committee on Military Justice of the American Bar Association, New York City; and Professor Arthur Sutherland, Harvard Law School, Cambridge, Mass. Donald L. Deming, New York City, will serve as secretary to the committee.

Services Step Up Campaign To Boost Reenlistments And Hold Skilled NCO's

The campaign to cut down the heavy attrition among skilled noncommissioned officers was stepped up this week in all the Services:

1. The Army announced a policy change to permit voluntary retirements after 20 years.

2. The Air Force prepared for release a new regulation spelling out NCO responsibilities and set 1 March as the date when airmen will be given 90 days instead of 30 in which to reenlist in grade.

3. The Navy reported that only about 1 out of 10 men completing their first tour are signing up for further service.

4. The Marine Corps released a memorandum which cited a "critical personnel situation" and called for immediate action to improve the reenlistment rate.

As was reported in last week's issue of THE JOURNAL, Pentagon leaders are perturbed because of the drop in reenlistment rates. Personnel officials of all Services have assigned priority attention to the problem.

The Army hopes, for example, that the decision to reinstitute voluntary 20-year retirements after 31 March (details page 728) will help stop the downward reenlistment trend. Since August 1950, enlisted men with more than 20 years and less than 28 years service who retired have been recalled the next day to active duty.

And on Capitol Hill, the release of Congressional testimony (adjoining column) showed the concern of Army officials with the slow-down in enlisted promotions. This resulted from slashes in fiscal year '53 funds at the Bureau of the Budget. It is no secret that reduced promotion opportunity has had a serious adverse effect on reenlistments in the Army and all of the other Uniformed Forces.

Meantime, the Air Force will release momentarily a regulation which is designed to increase the prestige of NCO's. The Air Force earlier restricted NCO status to the top three—instead of four—airman grades in a move which had the same objective.

From the Air Training Command headquarters at Scott AFB, Ill., comes word that a survey is now being made of T/D positions calling for junior officers to determine if top-ranking NCO's can fill billets held by junior officers.

As a major action in the reenlistment campaign, the Air Force beginning 1 March will permit an airman 90 days, instead of the present 30 days, to reenlist in grade.

That the Navy is just as concerned over the reenlistment problem as the other Services was indicated in House Appropriations Committee testimony made public this week.

Said Capt. William C. Cooper, USN, Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Naval Personnel for Plans and Policy:

"The thing has us worried . . . is that we cannot get enough men who are finishing their first cruise to reenlist."

Captain Cooper related that only 10 or 12 per cent are reenlisting after the first tour, and the overall rate was put at about 40 per cent.

Although the 40 per cent figure was said to be a little higher than the long-range average, Captain Cooper emphasized that "right now we do not have very many people finishing their first cruise, because four years ago we had a very small input into the Navy."

The reenlistment problem for the Navy will increase in the next year or two as post-Korea enlistees complete initial tours of active service. The same is true for the other Services, but particularly for the Air Force and Marine Corps.

The Marine Corps has made available a memorandum by Lt. Gen. G. C. Thomas, Chief of Staff to General Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., Commandant, which calls attention to "the critical personnel situation and the serious nature of the reenlistment problem."

General Thomas directed that "intensive internal recruiting programs" be maintained and action taken immediately to improve the reenlistment rate in the Marine Corps.

It was emphasized that when an individual indicates a desire not to reenlist, interviews are to be conducted by both officer and enlisted personnel to find out the reasons.

The memorandum states that "in the event a specific inducement is desired and the commanding officer concerned is not authorized to grant such inducement, the request should be referred to the Commandant of the Marine Corps (Code DFB) in sufficient time for necessary action to be taken prior to discharge or separation. Requests for additional incentives, when considered justified by local commanders, should be submitted for all ranks."

The Marine Corps is particularly anxious to keep its reenlistment rate as high as possible. The extent to which the Corps will have to rely on Selective Service in fiscal year 1954 will be determined largely by the response to the reenlistment drive, Marine Corps officials relate.

Ft. Eustis Asst. PIO

Second Lt. Charles R. Wonderly, Jr. has been assigned to the Ft. Eustis, Va., Public Information Office with duty as Assistant Public Information Officer.

New Ft. Lee C of S

The new chief of staff at Ft. Lee, Va., is Col. Edward F. Stamford-Blunden, a veteran of five years of service in the British Navy as well as 12 years of active duty in the U. S. Army.

Colonel Stamford-Blunden's previous assignment was as deputy chief of the New York Quartermaster Procurement Agency. He is replacing Col. Coleman Romain, who left last week for an assignment in the Far East Command.

Capt. Irvin to Command New USS Northampton

Capt. William D. Irvin, has been named to command the 17,000-ton USS Northampton, CLC-1, the Navy's prototype tactical command ship which is scheduled to be commissioned this month.

A 1927 graduate of the Naval Academy, Captain Irvin goes to his new assignment from command of the USS Adirondack. He also is a graduate of the National War College, has taken post-graduate instruction in applied communications and is qualified for command of submarines.

Very little information has been divulged by the Navy about the new prototype vessel. It was originally laid down at Quincy, Mass., in 1944 as the fourth Oregon City, and was more than 50 per cent completed when cancelled in August 1945. The vessel was reordered in July 1948 as a task fleet command ship.

Captain Irvin has been succeeded as skipper of the Adirondack by Capt. Robert B. Heilig, formerly assigned to the Bureau of Ordnance. Captain Heilig is a 1931 graduate of the Naval Academy.

COMMAND CHANGES—Capt. Robert B. Heilig, U.S.N., new commanding officer of the USS Adirondack, shakes hands with his predecessor, Capt. William D. Irvin, U.S.N., in a change of command ceremony that took place aboard the ship recently. Capt. Irvin will now assume command of the new cruiser USS Northampton when she is commissioned.

Boost EM Promotions Army Urges Congress

Release of Congressional testimony this week showed that the Army made a strong bid for increased enlisted promotions during House hearings on the 1953 Supplemental Appropriations Bill.

The Army's presentation won favorable bi-partisan response in the Appropriations Subcommittee.

Said Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, speaking of the 1953 budget:

"The enlisted grade structure was too restrictive in the number of promotions it would permit. This matter was discussed at some length with the members of this committee during the hearings in connection with the fiscal year 1952 supplemental budget.

"At that time, the committee indicated that we should correct this deficiency at the earliest opportunity in order to give the enlisted man the promotions he was promised and deserved.

"These estimates will accomplish that objective."

General Young added that enlisted promotions would continue to be governed by quotas from the Department of the Army.

"Matter of Absolute Justice"

Representative Erritt Scrivner (R-Kans.) said whatever the amount involved in this request, "it is a matter of absolute justice that it should be done."

Congressman Scrivner said he would raise "no objection whatsoever" to supplemental requests, "because if there is any one thing that will demoralize a man who has enlisted voluntarily, a man to whom you might logically look for reenlistment, is to start out, as many of them had to start out, having had promises made to them that promotions would be made after they fulfilled certain requirements, and then to have those promises not fulfilled."

Supports His Colleague

Representative Robert L. F. Sikes (D-Fla.) said he supports Mr. Scrivner's remarks and added: "I thought that we made it clear in the hearings last spring that, if any additional funds were required in order that enlisted men might have the promotions which they are entitled to, we wanted estimates on the amount of money so that we could include that amount of money. . . . This committee in the past stood ready and still stands ready to provide such funds at any time we are given an estimate of the amount."

The Committee, in reporting out the bill, told the Department of Defense that no new funds would be approved for any of the projects requested, but said this money could be obtained from transfer of funds previously voted.

Nurse Surgical Supervisor

Lt. Col. Bessie V. Fullbright, ANC, recently joined the staff at Letterman Army Hospital, San Francisco, as Nurse Supervisor for Surgical Service. She succeeds Maj. Katherine Ball, who has been transferred to Ft. McArthur, Calif.

In WWII, Colonel Fullbright served in England, Africa and Italy and has had two years post-war duty in the Philippines. She was awarded the Bronze Star for her services as Chief Nurse of a 3,000 bed hospital in Italy during the Rome-Arno campaign.

Colonel Fullbright had five brothers in service, all of whom served overseas in WWII. Three are currently in service, Capt. Ralph M. Fullbright with the Air Force in Germany; WOJG Preston E. Fullbright, assigned to Ordnance, 6th Army, and Vernon Fullbright, Chief Petty Officer in the Navy.

Heads USMC Training Regt.

Col. Walter N. Flournoy is the new Commanding Officer of the Marine Corps' First Infantry Training Regiment, Camp Pendleton, Calif. He succeeded Col. William H. Barba who has been assigned to new duty overseas.

President Names 65 Army Generals For Promotions

Nine Army lieutenant generals, 19 major generals and 37 brigadier generals who hold temporary ranks as a result of recess appointments given between the time the 82d Congress adjourned in July 1952 and the 83d convened in January were nominated to the Senate this week by President Eisenhower.

Also nominated was Col. Jacob L. Hartman, recently named Chief of the Veterinary Corps, for promotion to brigadier general in the Regular Army.

One of those named for temporary lieutenant general is a permanent brigadier general—Isaac D. White. Ten of the temporary major generals are permanent colonels and one, Gerald J. Higgins, is a permanent lieutenant colonel.

Among those nominated for brigadier general are six permanent lieutenant colonels and one permanent major—William C. Westmoreland.

Nominated this week were:

Maj. Gen. to Lt. Gen.

101ST REMEMBERS

Lt. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, USA, Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations and Administration, who as deputy commander of the 101st Airborne Division in WWII commanded the glider echelon landing in Holland on 18 Sept. 1944, this week presented a check for $9,140 to the Netherlands Ambassador to aid flood relief activities in Holland.

The money was raised by members of the 101st at Camp Breckinridge, Ky., in remembrance of aid given them during the war by Dutch citizens. The check was accepted by Dr. J. H. Van Roijens, Netherlands Ambassador.

Five enlisted men of the 101st participated in the ceremony. They were: M/Sgt. Lloyd C. Butler, Btry. B, 81st Airborne FA Bn.; Sfc Donald L. Patrick, Co. B, 502d Airborne Inf. Regt.; Pfc Juicain W. Knaster, Hq. and Hq. Co. 506th Airborne Inf. Regt.; Pvt. James H. North, Co. L, 53d Airborne Inf. Regt.; and Pvt. Horace A. Johnson, Co. A, 516th Airborne Inf. Regt.

Brig. Gen. Henning Named G-4

Brig. Gen. Frank A. Henning, USA, has succeeded Maj. Gen. Aaron Bradshaw, Jr., as G-4 of the U. S. Army, Europe.

General Henning, 56, has been serving as Acting G-4 since last December when he was reassigned to USAREUR Hqs. from U. S. European Command Hqs. in Frankfurt. Prior to his assignment with U. S. EUCOM, he was Deputy Director of the USAREUR Logistics Division, now G-4.

General Bradshaw has retired from the Army after nearly 36 years of service.

20-Yr. Army Retirements For EM Resume 31 March

The Army will permit retirement of enlisted men with 20 years' service beginning 31 March.

This retirement privilege has not been in effect since August 1950 because of the Korea emergency.

Beginning 31 March, enlisted men with more than 20 years' service and less than 28 years, who heretofore were recalled to active duty the day after retirement, will not be recalled.

Furthermore, between 31 March and 30 June some 1,400 retired enlisted men who were recalled for further service will be retired unless they volunteer for further active duty.

The Army said that all enlisted men recalled to active duty the day following retirement were involuntarily recalled and are eligible for release. However, not eligible are those who volunteered for recall and those who were recalled and who voluntarily extended their periods of service.

Retired enlisted men now serving involuntarily who are eligible for release, said the Army, may volunteer to remain on active duty subsequent to retirement provided such service will not extend beyond the date the individual completes 30 years' active service or 30 years to include active service and service on the retired list.

Those retired enlisted men who have been promoted since recall will be retired in the grade in which originally retired, but they will receive retired pay based on the grade to which advanced while on active duty.

1st Cav. Div. Assoc.

The 1st Cavalry Division Association will hold its annual reunion at El Paso and Ft. Bliss, Tex. 4-5 Sept.

Reservations and information may be obtained from Col. Edmund P. Stone, Registrar, P. O. Box 201, Pomona, Calif.

"GUIDED MISSILE SMITH"

M/Sgt. Gilbert M. Smith has the distinction of being the first Army man to have a guided missile named in his honor.

The first missile launched by the Engineer Users Test Crews, 1st GM Detachment, White Sands Proving Grounds, N. Mex., was inscribed with the words: "Missile G. M. Smith."

Sergeant Smith came in for such fashionable treatment because of his long service record (he's the oldest man on the project) and because of his initials.

Military Training Branch Chief

Lt. Col. Charles T. Clark has been named Chief, Military Training Branch, Personnel and Training Division of the Office of the Chief Signal Officer. He has been serving as Acting Chief.

Commanders To Warn Against "Easy Credit"

The Army has told unit commanders to alert their men against the dangers of making novelty and luxury item purchases from firms which use "high pressure" sales talk and offers of quick, easy credit.

The Pentagon reported that in recent months hundreds of letters have been received by The Adjutant General from firms which complain of indebtedness of military personnel.

In many cases, it is reported, firms are using AR 600-10, which sets forth the policy of the Army to impress on all personnel the importance of satisfying obligations to the best of their ability, to put the Army Department in the position of a collection agency.

Army "Suspicious"

The date of incurrence of the debt or of the last payment is frequently so recent as to cause suspicion that credit accounts are being established without complete good faith on the part of the firm, Army officials related. There are also some examples wherein the soldier involved has not made a reasonable effort to satisfy his obligation.

Many cases being forwarded to the Department of the Army for assistance indicate the following, the Army said:

"a. The alleged delinquencies concern all grades of enlisted personnel but the majority of cases involve individuals below grade E-4.

"b. The recency of the debt or of the latest payment thereon rarely indicates a delinquency sufficient to justify the 'pressure' letters which are being used.

"c. The firms have established procedures to operate on a 'delinquent account' basis. Numerous form letters are used, each increasingly threatening in nature, to correspond with the client. A preprinted letter often is used to refer cases to The Adjutant General.

"d. The purchases are usually novelty or luxury items such as wrist watches, fancy watch bands, cigarette lighters and cases, etc. The volume of business and nature of the items being sold indicates high pressure tactics."

Pressure Collections

These cases are said to indicate that in many instances advantage is being taken of enlisted personnel. The record shows that offers of easy credit plans are shortly being converted into pressure collections for quick payment. Such tactics are not good business practice and are manifestly unfair, the Department said. It should be noted, however, that any contract for merchandise or service becomes a legal obligation of the individual, the Army cautioned.

Unit commanders were instructed to counsel their men to make only such purchases as are necessary, avoid business firms of questionable reputation, and establish credit accounts only when the ability to satisfy the payment commitment can clearly be foreseen and when the purchase is of the essential rather than the luxury category.

This counsel is particularly important for the young soldiers who suddenly find themselves in a new environment with a little money, but without the necessary guidance or experience to ward off a "high pressure" sales talk, the Army's statement concluded.

Basic research and engineering advances make RCA Victor's 1953 TV receivers the finest you can buy.

First with the major advances— since Television began!

Families living in television areas have seen from the beginning why more people buy RCA Victor television sets than any other brand. As TV spreads to new communities, millions more learn the same.

Enthusiastic reception of the 1953 RCA Victor sets again proves that advanced research and engineering means finer television. You see it in the improved "Magic Monitor" circuit system which automatically screens out interference, steps up power, tunes the best sound to the clearest picture.

Further proof of leadership is the new RCA "Deep Image" picture tube with its micro-sharp electron beam and superfine phosphor screen which ensures the finest picture quality. It is also seen in reception at a distance—as well as in automatic tuning of all channels, both VHF and UHF.

Today's RCA Victor receivers result from the same research and engineering leadership that perfected the kinescope picture tube, the super sensitive image orthicon TV cameras, reflection-free metal-shell picture tubes—and which opened UHF to television service.

RCA research assures you better value—more for each dollar you invest—in any product or service of RCA and RCA Victor.

10 Navy Line Officers Named To Supply Corps

A Navy selection board has named ten officers of the Regular Navy for transfer from the Line to the Supply Corps. Five alternates also were named.

The Navy said transfers of this nature are made to meet the needs of the Service.

Individual letters of appointment will be sent to the selected officers and when transfer is effected, they will be ordered to the Supply Corps School at Bayonne, N. J., for a five-months' training course.

The list of selectees and alternates follows:

Capt. Boland to Minneapolis
Capt. Clay A. Boland (DC) USNR, head of the Reserve Branch, Dental Division, will represent the Navy in the panel discussions at the 70th annual meeting of the Minnesota State Dental Association 22-25 Feb. at Minneapolis.

Board To Select Reserve Marine Majors in Session

A Marine Corps selection board was convened on 16 Feb. to consider for temporary promotion to major those Reserve captains who were not on active duty on 15 May 1952 when their regular running mates were considered for temporary promotion.

Some 1,500 Reserve captains are to be considered for selection if found "fully qualified," Headquarters said.

President of the board will be Brig. Gen. William J. Whaling, USMC, deputy commander of the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego. Other members will be Col. James E. Howarth, jr., USMCR; Lieutenant Colonels David F. Ross, USMCR; Joseph H. Reinburg, USMC; John L. Zimmerman, USMCR; and Helen G. O'Neill, USMCR; and Major James C. Norris, jr., USMC. Recorder will be Capt. James T. Adair, jr., USMC, and assistant recorder, 1st Lt. Eleanor K. Dailey, USMCR.

PRaise for Marines

A member of the Sarnoff Commission who resigned in December had some succinct observations on co-operation given by the various Services. Here is how Brig. Gen. Robert W. Johnson, USAF, described the attitude of the Services:

Marine Corps—Excellent
Air Force—Cooperative and open to greater progress
Army—Spotty, large areas of resistance

Navy—Militantly resistant
Civil Service—Disinterested
General Johnson observed that a target for reduction might cut funds as follows: Navy, 20 per cent; Army, 15; Air Force, 12, and Marine Corps, 4 per cent.

He cautioned that "a considerable portion of waste in manpower and resources is imposed upon the military services."

Back Col. Chambers For CDA

Col. Justice M. Chambers, USMCR, reportedly is receiving strong backing in the 83d Congress for appointment as Federal Civil Defense Administrator.

Colonel Chambers, present executive assistant administrator of CDA, is now in Paris attending a NATO conference on civil defense problems. He is reported to have the backing of several members of the Senate Armed Services Committee on whose professional staff he served during the 80th and 81st Congresses.

A Congressional Medal of Honor winner (for heroic service on Iwo Jima), Colonel Chambers also is national president of the Marine Corps Reserve Officers Association.

2d MarDiv Celebrates 12 Years of Service

The 2d Marine Division recently celebrated its 12th year of service with a march past at Camp Lejeune, N. C.

Presenting as reviewing officer was Maj. Gen. Field Harris, Deputy Commanding General, Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic. With him on the reviewing stand were Maj. Gen. Randolph McCall Pate, Commanding General of the division, Brig. Gen. John N. Hart, Deputy Commanding General, Air FMF, Atlantic; Col. Carson A. Roberts, Chief of Staff, Air FMFLant; and staff officers of the 2d Division.

Maj. Gen. Pate

Activated in 1941, the division provided the first American unit to land on enemy held soil in World War II. At Tarawa it earned the Presidential Unit Citation, and later participated in the battles of Saipan, Tinian and Okinawa before landing at Nagasaki in September 1945.

Show Strength

The Camp Lejeune review was the largest show of the division's strength since General Pate took command last September. With the exception of the 6th Marine Regiment, which is currently training in the Caribbean, all units of the division participated. They were led by Col. Bruno A. Hochmuth, Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1.

Brig. Gen. R. E. Hogaboom is Deputy Commander of the Division and Col. Robert E. Luckey is Chief of Staff. Other division staff members, in addition to Colonel Hochmuth, are Col. David W. Stonedcliffe, G-2; Col. Charles N. Nees, G-3; and Col. Charles L. Granger, G-4.

Unit CO's

Commanding officers of 2d Division units are Col. D. M. Weller, 10th Marines; Col. DeWolf Schatzel, 8th Marines; Col. O. R. Simpson, 6th Marines; Col. R. F. Scott, 2d Marines; Lt. Col. L. D. Reid, 2d Tank Bn; Maj. H. C. Borth, 2d Ordnance Bn; Lt. Col. C. J. Cagel, 2d Motor Transport Bn; Maj. J. S. Reamy, 2d Signal Bn; Col. E. M. Williams, 2d Shore Party Bn; Lt. Col. C. A. Boyd, 2d Service Bn; Lt. Col. R. M. Hanna, Hq Bn; Lt. Col. G. L. H. Cooper, 2d Engineer Bn; and Comdr. F. T. Norris, 2d Medical Bn.

Serve on MCROA Council

Lieutenant Colonels E. E. Codere and Roy Spurlock, USMCR, have been named to serve on the Marine Corps Reserve Officers Association National Council. It was announced by Col. J. M. Chambers, National President of MCROA.

Colonel Codere is Commanding Officer of Washington, D. C.'s 5th Infantry Battalion and Colonel Spurlock heads Marine Reserve Fighter Squadron 321 at Anacostia, D. C.

Gen. Williams To Be New Marine Corps IG

Brig. Gen. Gregon A. Williams, USMC, has been designated to succeed Maj. Gen. Samuel L. Howard, USMC, as Inspector General of the Marine Corps, when the latter retires on 1 April.

General Howard will reach the statutory retirement age, 62, on 8 March, after completing more than 38 years' active military service. A graduate of the Virginia Military Institute, he entered the Marine Corps as a second lieutenant on 11 May 1914. During World War II, while commanding the Fourth Marine Regiment at Corregidor, he was taken prisoner by the Japanese. He was liberated in August 1945.

IG Since 1950

Subsequently, he served as Deputy Commander of the Marine Barracks, Parris Island, S. C.; as Commanding General of the First Marine Division (Reinforced) at Tientsin, China; Commanding General of Marine Garrison Forces, Pacific, and President of the Naval Examining Board and the Marine Corps Reserve Examining Board. He has served as Inspector General since June 1950.

General Williams, 57, present Commanding General, Fleet Marine Force Atlantic Troops, Camp Lejeune, N. C., entered the Corps as an enlisted man in 1917. He was commissioned a second lieutenant on 23 Dec. 1922, and was graduated second in his class from the Basic School Course at Quantico.

Fought Outlaws

During the campaigns against the Nicaraguan bandits in the early thirties, he won the Navy Cross for heroism in his numerous successful engagements with bands of outlaws.

At the beginning of World War II, he was serving as Assistant Naval Attache in Shanghai, where he was taken prisoner by the Japanese. Repatriated to the United States aboard the USS Gripsholm in August 1942, he was assigned to Navy Department Intelligence. Later, he served as a Naval Observer with the American Embassy in Chungking, and in August

Brig. Gen. Williams

1944, took command of the Sixth Marine Regiment on Saipan, where he earned the Bronze Star Medal.

During the Korean War, General Williams was Chief of Staff of the First Marine Division through the bitter fall and winter campaigns of 1950. He was promoted to the rank of Brigadier General in January 1951, and the following month was ordered to the United States for his present assignment.

Honor Rear Adm. Behrens

The American College of Radiology recently conferred the degree of Fellowship on Rear Admiral Charles F. Behrens, (MC), author of Atomic Medicine, and an Associate Fellowship on Commander Francis W. Chambers, Jr., MSC, a radiation physicist.

19 USMC Master Sgt's Among Retiring NCO's

The Marine Corps has announced the retirement of 32 staff non-commissioned officers, including 19 master sergeants.

Placed on the temporary disability list were Master Sergeants Charles M. Britt, Marshall D. Dodson, John B. Lagasa, and Astle A. Ryder; Technical Sergeants Thomas E. Duff, David R. Frazer, Adiel H. Moss, and Rayburn H. Nelson; Staff Sergeants Roderick W. Dow, Richard D. Lynn, Ozy Mooney, Thomas E. Moreau, Jr., and David A. O. Omundson.

Master Sergeant Stephen G. Leidy was placed on the permanent disability retired list, and Master Sergeant John Ellenberger was transferred from the temporary disability list to the permanent disability retired list.

Seventeen were placed on the Fleet Marine Corps Reserve Retired List. Ten (indicated by asterisks) were retained on active duty. They are:

For Safety...Security...Defense

The Bell Telephone Laboratories, the Bell System's research organization, and the Western Electric Company, its manufacturing unit, have been called upon to handle more than a hundred projects for the U. S. Department of Defense. (Four are shown above.) The projects cover research, development, engineering and manufacture, including the very important Sandia, New Mexico, project for the Atomic Energy Commission. Today, as always, the unique skills, experience and teamwork of Bell System people are at the service of the Nation.

Maj. Gen. Lynch Retires But Will Be Recalled

Maj. Gen. Edmund C. Lynch, USAF, 52, who is Director of the Manpower Requirements Division in the Office of Assistant Secretary of Defense John A. Hannah, will retire on 28 March and will be recalled to active duty the next day to serve until 1 June, when he will revert to retired status.

General Lynch, who was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1922, is retiring after 30 years service and 5 years in the permanent grade of brigadier general.

A WWII Chief of the Enlisted Branch in the Army General Staff Personnel Division, General Lynch has been serving since July 1951 as Manpower Requirements Director.

His forthcoming recall to active duty, Pentagon officials said, will be made to permit him to assist the new Assistant Secretary and to help in the indoctrination of a successor. The likelihood is that an Army or Navy officer will be named for this Defense Department post to replace General Lynch.

Piper Cub Training

Primary pilot training at Goodfellow AFB, San Angelo, Tex., has been revised to include early instruction in the L-21, a small, Piper Cub-type plane.

Originally, students received their initial training in the T-6, a heavier and more complex craft. However, it was decided to eliminate 10 hours of T-6 schooling in deference to 25 hours of L-21 flight instruction, thus increasing the overall training period from 130 to 145 hours.

Economically, the L-21 phase will be advantageous insofar as it serve as a screening period to weed out men unfitted for flying, Air Force officials said. T-6 training is more expensive. Students unable to pass the initial L-21 tests will be dropped from the program.

Furthermore, according to Maj. Lowell Hess, Training Analysis and Development Officer, the light plane training will enable more students to solo. The L-21 is easier to handle, and consequently, more "borderline cases" should be able to solo when they reach the T-6 stage, said Major Hess.

Col. Matthews MATS Dpty I. G.

Col. Luther B. Matthews, commanding officer of the MATS Pacific Division's 1502d Support Squadron at Kwajalein, has been reassigned as Deputy Inspector General at MATS Headquarters, Washington, D. C. He was replaced by Col. Charles M. Smith, who formerly commanded the 1717th Wing, West Palm Beach, Fla.

U. S. AIR FORCE

ADC Changes Boundaries Of 3 Air Defense Forces

The Air Force on 16 Feb. changed the boundaries of the Western, Central and Eastern Defense Forces of the Air Defense Command.

The most important changes are in the Western Air Defense Force, cut from 11 states to five, and in the Central Air Defense Force, enlarged to encompass 24 central and southeastern states and portions of several others.

The change in boundaries will not cause any movement of units or personnel.

Eastern Air Defense Force will remain virtually unchanged, with only a slight westward expansion in Wisconsin and Illinois.

Under the new set-up, most of Montana and Arizona and all of Wyoming, Utah, Colorado and New Mexico will be switched from Western Air Defense Force to Central Air Defense Force.

Several Air Divisions (Defense), subordinate units of the Defense Forces, will also be affected by the boundary change.

Western Air Defense Force's reduction in size will enable it to concentrate on the defense of heavily populated and industrialized areas on the West Coast, the Air Force said, adding that the over-all result of the boundary shift will be a more even balance between the responsibilities of Air Defense Command units.

CAREER CONFISCATION

"I want to reaffirm the adverse effect this restriction has had on the morale of our officer corps. It is one more step toward confiscation of the benefits which have for so long been a part of the military career. Promotion and retirement are component parts of the overall blueprint for military service. The man who makes the decision to serve his country as a career expects that those benefits will continue to exist and accrue for him as he serves. This type of limitation shakes the confidence officers have in their Service and raises grave doubts as to the wisdom of their choice."—MAJ. GEN. MORRIS J. LEE, USAF, Air Force Director of Personnel Planning, testifying on Davis Amendment, 16 Feb.

Jet Pilot Instructors

Jet fighter pilot instructors at Randolph AFB, Tex., are being groomed in the latest teaching techniques to take over advanced student training at Laughlin AFB, Del Rio, Tex., a CrewTAF advanced fighter base.

In the first of three scheduled classes of two weeks' duration, 20 pilots, under the direction of the Academic Training Department, 3510th Flying Training Group, recently completed a course designed to show the best methods of teaching students jet fighter pilot fundamentals.

New USAFE Air Surgeon

Maj. Gen. Dan C. Ogle, Deputy Surgeon General of the Air Force since June 1949, has been named Air Surgeon of U. S. Air Forces Europe.

General Ogle, who transferred from the Army to the Air Force in 1949, was a 1931 graduate of the School of Aviation Medicine at Brooks Field, Tex. During WWII, he served as staff surgeon of the 15th Air Force in Italy.

After the war, he was chief of the plans and services division in the Office of the Air Surgeon and later was post surgeon at Maxwell AFB, Ala., and command surgeon of the Air University there before attending the Air War College in 1948.

He became assistant to the Surgeon General of the Air Force in June 1949 and was made Deputy Surgeon General the following December.

AF Lists Units O.K'D For Combat Duty Pay

The Air Force has released a list of units whose members have been declared eligible for combat duty pay. (All dates are 1950)

Units listed will be used in determining eligibility for combat duty pay to members under the provisions of paragraph 2a (1) and (2), AFL 173-3, 21 August 1952. Claims from members whose unit is not listed will be returned to the member advising him of the fact that he may resubmit his claim on an appeal basis. Claims submitted for members under the provisions of paragraph 2b (1) and (2), AFL 173-3, will be forwarded to the Air Adjutant General, Headquarters USAF, ATTENTION: Personnel Records Service Division, Washington 25, D. C., for determination.

Designated Combat Units were:
811th Engr. Av. Bn., 23 Sep.-3 Oct.
822d Engr. Av. Bn., Co. A, 15 Sep.-23 Sep.

AF Needs 7,000 Reserve Officers To Fill Billets

Nearly 7,000 Air Reserve officer volunteers are wanted by the Air Force to fill vacancies before 30 June, Continental Air Command disclosed this week.

This is an increase of 2,300 over ConAC's previous announcement last October when openings for 4,700 Air Reserve officers were disclosed. Specific needs now are for 3,701 pilots, 766 observers, and 2,500 non-rated officers.

Greatest need for non-rated officers is in the following skills: intelligence, photography and cartography, weather, communications and electronics, law, maintenance engineering, comptroller, security, investigation and law enforcement, research and development, supply, transportation, personnel, administrative services, aircraft controller, armament, education and training, and installations engineer.

ConAC officials are now processing some 2,000 Reserve officer applications for active duty. Nearly all of these officers may expect to be ordered to Air Force active service before 30 June.

Detailed information may be obtained by contacting one of Continental Air Command's four air forces. First Air Force is located at Mitchel AFB, N. Y., the Fourth AF, Hamilton AFB, Hamilton, Calif., Tenth AF, Selfridge AFB, Mich., and Fourteenth AF, Robins AFB, Ga.

Col. Pike To France

Col. Harry M. Pike, vice commander of the 28th Air Division (Defense) at Hamilton AFB, Calif., for nearly two years, has been ordered to be executive officer of the 48th Fighter-Bomber Wing, Chaumont, France.

Colonel Pike's wife, Sally; son, Harry Jr., 11, and daughter, Sara, 6, will live at the home of Mrs. Pike's mother, Mrs. Dorothy V. Greene, Ocean Springs, Miss., until family quarters can be obtained at Chaumont.

It will be the veteran fighter pilot's first assignment in Europe. For two years during WW II, he was a prisoner of war in Japan after being forced to bail out over enemy-occupied China.

At the University of Wisconsin, where he studied law, he was a varsity half-back and star punter in the 30's. The colonel's successor as Division Vice Commander has not been announced.

USAF Nominations

President Eisenhower on Friday, 13 Feb., sent to the Senate the following nominations:

Lt. Gen. Hubert Reilly Harmon, 18A (major general, Regular Air Force), United States Air Force, to be advanced on the retired list to the grade of general and effective 1 March, 1953, to be senior Air Force member, Military Staff Committee, United Nations, with rank of lieutenant general and date of rank from 19 January, 1948, under the provisions of section 504, Officer Personnel Act of 1947.

The following officers for appointment to the positions indicated under the provisions of section 504, Officer Personnel Act of 1947:

Lieutenant Generals
Maj. Gen. David Myron Schlatter, 62A, to be CG. Allied Air Forces, Southern Europe.

Maj. Gen. Bryant Le Maire Boatner, 362A, to be the Inspector General.

Maj. Gen. Joseph Hampton Atkinson, 90A, to be commander in chief, Alaskan Command.

The following named officers to be advanced on the retired list to the grade of lieutenant general under the provisions of subsection 504 (d) of the Officer Personnel Act of 1947.

Lieutenant Generals, Retired
Lt. Gen. Elwood Richard Quesada, 50A.
Lt. Gen. Idwal Hubert Edwards, 11A.
Lt. Gen. William E. Kepner, 6A.

Generals Kepner and Edwards retire at the end of this month after 35 years service and 5 years in the permanent grade of major general. The former was CG of the Alaskan Command; General Edwards commanded the Air University.

AF Loses Jr. Officers; Shortages In All Ranks

Air Force officer personnel losses during the current fiscal year will number approximately 24,190, with about 88 per cent of this number in the grades of captain and lieutenant.

This disclosure was made by Maj. Gen. Morris J. Lee, Air Force Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, in hearings held by the House Armed Services Committee on the Davis Amendment.

General Lee said the Air Force "must attract and retain officers by offering a career pattern that affords reasonable opportunity for advancement. This is the primary factor which influences an individual to join any organization. Thus, when officers are prohibited from advancing to a grade which they know to be commensurate with their job assignment, they naturally seek other work."

He reaffirmed the "adverse effect" the Davis Amendment has had on the morale of the Air Force officer corps and asked that the rider be repealed and eliminated from the forthcoming appropriations act. General Lee made these points during his testimony:

The Officer Personnel Act is entirely adequate to the needs of the Air Force during peace or war and should continue in effect without major modification.

The Air Force is now in the midst of a 50 per cent build-up in operational strength with only a 14 per cent increase in military personnel. To attain this objective requires a greater ratio of officers.

Operating under a formula based on total military strength, the Air Force is now and will be increasingly penalized as it reaches combat strength objectives. Consequently, the Davis Amendment serves as a strong deterrent to meeting combat requirements both quantitatively and qualitatively.

If personnel programs must be prepared within fixed limitations on officer grades which are not directly related to the job to be done, the result will be both overages and shortages in specific grades between successive annual programs in complete disregard for proper management principles.

The application of the amendment is in many respects administratively unworkable. It has created an artificial ceiling which will require a number of personnel to occupy positions demanding a high level of responsibility and performance without the benefit of the grade and emoluments commensurate with these positions.

Shortages created in each grade by the restrictions, General Lee said, add up to 1,886. This includes 199 colonels and generals, 231 lieutenant colonels, 522 majors and 984 captains. As a result, all of these shortages must be made up in the grades of 1st and 2d lieutenant with the result that reduction in promotion opportunity for 1st lieutenants is really equal to the sum total of the reductions, or 1,886.

In summary, he said, the fixed percentage limits imposed by the restriction "can seriously impair our sound long-range planning."

Club Elects Gen. McAuliffe

Lt. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, Deputy Chief of Staff of the Army, has been elected to the presidency of the Army and Navy Club, Washington, D. C., and Vice Adm. Francis C. Denbrink, Commander of the Military Sea Transportation Service was named vice president.

Other new officers elected at the Club's annual meeting were Brig. Gen. A. Owen Seaman, USA-Ret., treasurer; and Col. J. W. Moreau, USMC-Ret., secretary.

Lt. Gen. Gerald C. Thomas, USMC, Assistant Commandant of the Marine Corps, was named as one of three new directors. The others are Rear Adm. J. Carey Jones and Maj. Gen. C. F. Thompson, USA-Ret.

B-36 Goose Bay Crash

The Air Force announced on Friday the 13th that a B-36 of the Strategic Air Command crashed shortly before midnight Thursday while making an approach for a landing 16 miles southwest of Goose Bay AB, Labrador.

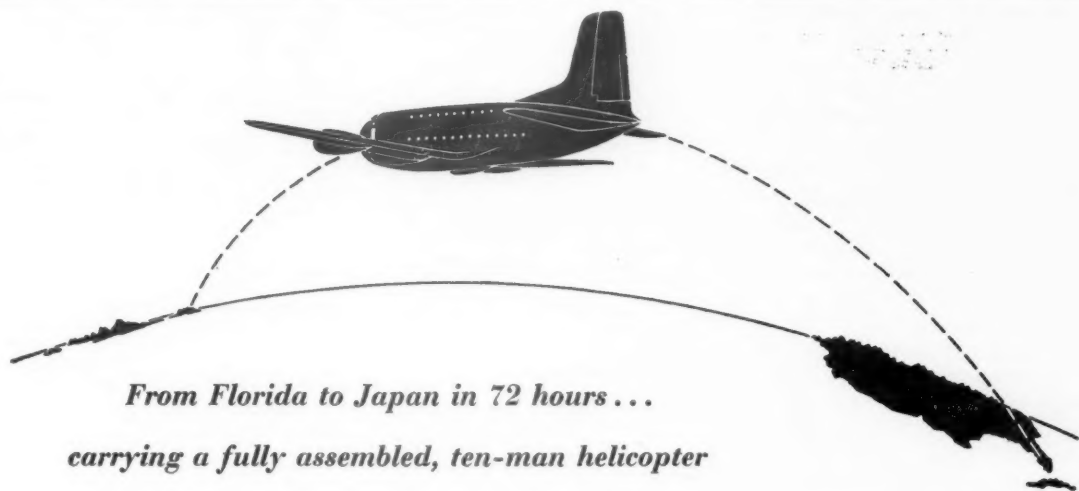

Of the 17 persons known to be aboard, reports indicated there were three dead, four seriously injured and 10 either uninjured or suffering minor injury.

The B-36 was one of a group of approximately 20 heavy bombers which departed Carswell AFB, Fort Worth, Texas early this month for a two-week training period in the United Kingdom. The deployment was part of SAC's normal training program.

Leaves AF Staff College

Col. Oliver E. Trechter, USA, who has been faculty executive officer and Army deputy commandant of the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Va. since April 1951, has left for a new assignment in Europe.

Col. William H. Harris, USA, has been announced as Colonel Trechter's relief effective 13 Feb. Colonel Harris came to the Staff College in May 1952 from San Antonio, Texas, where he was adjutant general of the Fourth Army. He has been school secretary and Army member of the Review Board until his recent appointment to succeed Colonel Trechter.

From Florida to Japan in 72 hours... carrying a fully assembled, ten-man helicopter

—the DOUGLAS C-124 Globemaster

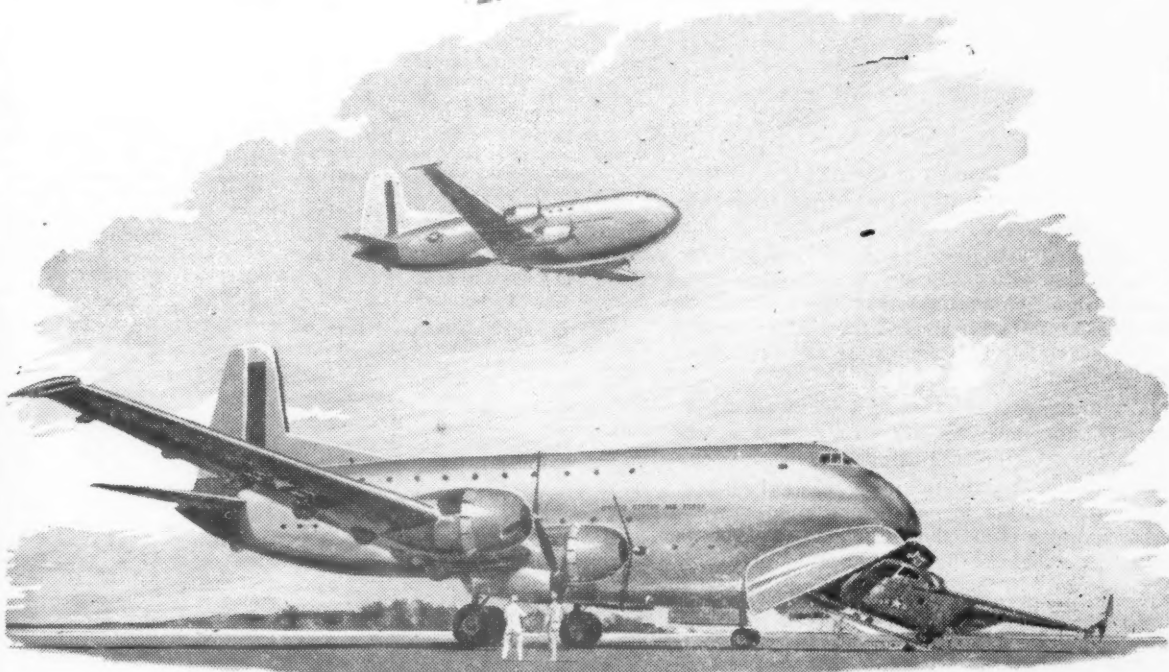

From the front lines in Korea last year came calls for a 10-man helicopter. The Air Force had some, but they were in Florida—9,000 miles away.

Normal air transport could make the flight in time, but tearing down a helicopter—reassembling it in Korea—would waste a week. So the Air Force turned to a Douglas C-124 Globemaster, the flying giant that covers thousands of miles nonstop with a 25-ton payload. Globemaster opened its clam-shell doors and swallowed the helicopter whole, took off, and reached Japan in 72 hours.

Next day, at the Korean front, our men had the helicopter they needed.

Performance of the Globemaster in action is another example of Douglas leadership in aviation. Faster and farther with a greater payload is a basic of all Douglas design.

"We strive to erect a wall of security for the free world behind which free institutions can live. That wall must be maintained until Communistic imperialism dies of its own inherent evils."—THE HON. DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER.

What About Security? The most cogent comment yet heard on the report of the Sarnoff Manpower Commission has come from Representative Dewey Short (R.-Mo.), Chairman of the House Committee on Armed Services. Mr. Short agrees that the proposed reductions of 500,000 in manpower and $5 billion in appropriations are desirable objectives IF they can be attained without weakening security. Mr. Short also notes that there is no indication the advice of the Joint Chiefs of Staff has been obtained either to chart a path toward these budget-balancing reductions or to give a professional analysis as to the impact such cuts would have upon our ability to defend ourselves. Mr. Short promises that his committee will consult with these top military advisers on these matters.

Before other members of Congress launch high-powered drives to put these cuts into effect on budget estimates now before them, we urge that they take into consideration the fact that the report recommends a "top to bottom" survey—which it did not make itself—and that it admits the reductions "can not be made overnight." Furthermore, Secretary of Defense Wilson, in accepting the report, said that it is now "up to us to consider this advice carefully and to take such actions as seem justified." Presumably, he too will ask his top military advisers for their reaction to the 10 per cent reduction.

If further study and the comments of the Joint Chiefs of Staff reveal that the budget-balancing cuts can be made without curtailing military effectiveness, then we have a most desirable objective. If they reveal otherwise it would be suicidal to attempt them.

The Pay Situation. While the Services' pay readjustment bill submitted by former Secretary Lovett lies untouched and un-introduced in the Committees of Congress, the wheels are turning in the direction of a further pay increase for civilian employees of the government. (The last Congress gave the civilians a 10 per cent boost effective 1 July 1951 and the Services an average of 5.7 per cent increase for active personnel and 4 per cent for retired personnel effective 1 May 1952).

The Executive Council of the AFL's American Federation of Government Employees is seeking pay increases for classified Civil Service employees ranging from $400 to $1,000 and restoration of 26 days annual and 15 days sick leave with no limit on accumulation. The House Civil Service Committee has asked the Budget Bureau and the Civil Service Commission for their views on proposed increases.

The arguments in favor of a further increase for civilian employees are strong—and so are those for a better readjustment of Service pay scales. While the climate of economy which prevails in Congress is not favorable to pay increases, every effort should be made to keep its importance before the legislators so that they will be aware of the facts should a suitable occasion to bring it about arise.

The Long-Morse Strategy. A new and wonderful plan of global defense has arisen from the 40-day Summer tour of U. S. bases abroad made by Senators Wayne B. Morse (Ind-Ore) and Russell B. Long (D-La). The proposal is a distant cousin of the once-popular millions-will-spring-to-arms-overnight theory. Under the Long-Morse strategy, the United States would have its worldwide chain of air bases, but would send only a few hundred men to each—sort of care-taking detachments. This would save money and the men would not be forced to stay "far away from their families and loved ones." If trouble should arise the solution is simple—in the words of the Long-Morse report the United States would "rush thousands of reserves to this outpost by sea and air in

Data on 31st Inf. Reg.

Editor, THE JOURNAL:
The 31st Infantry Regiment is attempting to compile data to be used in a written history of the Regiment which will be published in the near future. Information concerning certain events in our history has been lost, and the few facts which we have been able to accumulate are only personal testimony records.

The lack of records is probably due to the fact that the 31st and most of its files were destroyed at Bataan, Philippine Islands, in 1942. I am writing to you in hope that your assistance may be secured in this search. Inclosed are a series of questions for which we are seeking answers.

Enclosure:

Information on the following subjects relative to the history of the 31st Infantry Regiment is vague and distorted. Any assistance in solving these problems would be greatly appreciated. Names, file number, dates and authority are especially desired:

1. Information on Regimental Coat of Arms and Crest; who designed, when, what insignia worn in Siberia?
2. Information of Medal of Honor recipients; name, by whom recommended, regimental commander and general officer who concurred in recommendation; general order on which CMH awarded, date of presentation, by whom presented.
3. Information of former Regimental Commanders, name (in full), dates assigned, where located now, present rank.
4. Information on activities of the 31st in the Philippines from 13 August 1916 to 13 August 1918.
5. Information on activities of the 31st in Siberia.
6. Information on CMH and DSC awards in Siberia; general order numbers, dates and authority.
7. Information on units of the 31st being sent to Japan in 1923 to assist in reconstruction and maintaining order following the typhoon; units participating, authority for sending unit; description of activities while in Japan.

8. Information on duties and activities of the 31st from 1923 to 1932 with particular emphasis on garrison life and what it was like.

9. Information on fighting engaged in by the 31st in Shanghai, 1932; were any individual awards presented?

10. Information on Navy Unit Citation and Yangtze Ribbon; when presented, by what authority (order number, issuing authority, date).

11. Information of Shanghai Bowl; where Chinese silver dollars came from; by whom constructed, when first presented to Regiment, by whom presented, information on any ceremony concerning the bowl held prior to 1946.

12. Information and personal accounts of the Japanese attack on the Philippines, Bataan, Mt. Sumat battle, the Death March, life in Japanese prison.

13. Information on awards either presented or recommended for men of the 31st in 1941-42: name of men, by whom recommended, regimental commander and general officer who concurred in recommendation, general order on which awarded, date of presentation, by whom presented.

U. S. Forces in Britain

Editor, THE JOURNAL:
Reference is made to comment titled "Jurisdiction Over U. S. Forces in Britain," in "Service News and Gossip," in THE JOURNAL for 31 Jan.

The comment gives the impression that the U. S. Armed Forces have achieved a new jurisdiction over personnel in Great Britain, which is not the case.

By the United States of America (Visiting Forces) Act of 1942, the British Parliament gave U. S. Armed Forces exclusive, plenary jurisdiction over criminal offenses committed by American service personnel. That Act, although passed as a war-time measure, is still in effect; and is the current basis of the exercise of jurisdiction in criminal cases by U. S. Commanders in the U. K. The Visiting Forces Act of 1952 the event an enemy attempted to capture it." Details of what the enemy would be doing while our reserves are being assembled, embarked, transported, disembarked, supplied and deployed have not been worked out. Having laid down the grand strategy, it is understood that the Senators are willing to leave minor matters to the professionals.

Like many other proposals, this latest has the merit of cheapness. It and similar advice could put us on the path to becoming the most economically-sound defeated nation in history.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—

In an interim report issued by the House Military Committee, the War Department is highly commended for the "good business" revealed in leasing or purchasing hotel and other properties for barracks and hospital purposes. The report reveals that 475 hotels have been leased and eight have been purchased for conversion to hospitals.

50 Years Ago—

The corner-stone of the new War College in Washington was laid on 21 Feb. The War College will be erected on what is known as the "Barracks Reservation." When completed, the War College, together with the Engineers' School and Washington Barracks will be one of the most imposing military institutions in the world.

85 Years Ago—

The Army appropriation bill for 1868 called for $33,000,000. Army expenses for the preceding four years averaged $22,000,000 yearly. The Army was composed of 19 regiments. In 1868, the Army was composed of 60 regiments. The aggregate requested for all appropriations for the year was $275,000,000.

referred to in THE JOURNAL was passed by the British Parliament to implement, inter alia, Article VII of the Status of Forces Agreement of 1951. This Agreement was signed by the Secretary of State and the Foreign Minister but, not having as yet been ratified by the Senate, does not govern the relations between the two governments in this regard. As a consequence, the Visiting Forces Act of 1952 recently passed by the British Parliament is considered to be a municipal law which is not binding on the forces of a visiting sovereign (the United States) until assented to by that sovereign.

The 1952 Act provides for a substantial curtailment of the current exercise of jurisdiction by American courts martial. The new Act provides for American court martial jurisdiction over personnel of the Armed Forces, civilian components and dependents of military and civilian personnel only where the offense alleged to have been committed:

1. Arises in the course of duty or,
2. Concerns the person or property of another American.

For all other offenses, American servicemen will be triable in the English courts at such time as the 1952 Act may replace the 1942 statute.

A further point is that the 1952 Visiting Forces Act, by its terms, provides that it shall not come into operation until Orders in Council are appointed as to all or any portion of the Act. No such orders have as yet been appointed.

The above represents the personal opinion of the undersigned, and does not necessarily reflect the view of the Third Air Force.

Rickover Retirement Inquiry

Senate Armed Services Committee Hearings Will Seek Details on Retirement of Atom Expert and Navy Selection Board Data

THE Senate Armed Services Committee will open hearings next week on nominations of flag and general officers, at which time it will call Vice Adm. Laurence T. DuBose, former Chief of Naval Personnel, to testify in the case of Capt. Hyman G. Rickover, USN.

An atomic energy expert who has been identified as the officer largely responsible for the development of the Navy's nuclear-powered submarine, Captain Rickover has been passed over for promotion to admiral for three succeeding years, and will be forced into retirement next July after completing 31 years of Naval service.

A spokesman for Senator Leverett Saltonstall (D-Mass.), Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, told THE JOURNAL that the Committee will depart from tradition and hold the hearings before the full committee membership. In the past, it has been the practice to appoint a sub-committee to review nominations, but this procedure is being dispensed with for the first meeting in order to acquaint all members of the Committee with the processes involved in confirming nominations.

Nominations Returned

At the same time, it was learned that all Service nominations submitted to the Senate prior to 1 Feb., including those of the Navy flag officers selected by the last board which considered Captain Rickover, have been returned to the White House with the request that they be concurred in by President Eisenhower.

The controversy in the Rickover case was outlined in a JOURNAL article last week which reported the blistering attack made against the Navy selection system by Representative Sidney R. Yates (D-Ill.). Representative Yates charged that Captain Rickover's failure to be selected for promotion to admiral "raises a serious question whether promotions to the top echelons in the Navy are made on the basis of merit."

He said, "The selection board mentality is far behind the needs of the day," and "something is drastically wrong with our system or with our law which requires the retirement of an outstanding scientist in the Navy when we only have two or three others like him in the entire Navy." Mr. Yates submitted suggestions for a new Navy selection system.

Complications

The situation was further complicated this week by news stories which told how an article prepared for Time Magazine about Captain Rickover had reportedly been held up for security clearance for 67 days within the Defense Department, Navy Department and the Atomic Energy Commission. The account was highlighted by these disclosures:

Rear Adm. Homer N. Wallin, Chief of the Bureau of Ships, advised the Chief of Navy Public Information, Rear Adm. Lewis S. Parks, that the article was "a scurrilous and uninformed emotional appeal to sympathy for a supposed underdog." A BuShips aide suggested in a memorandum rejected by his superiors that a story be "placed in a magazine friendly to the Navy and highly competitive with Time, to appear before the Time article."

The AEC said the article made it appear that if the Navy didn't promote Captain Rickover the AEC atomic submarine projects would collapse. The AEC said, "This is false and represents gross distortion." However, the AEC said, "If Rickover is forced to resign from the Navy on retirement schedules, these things probably will happen: (a) morale of the AEC Naval Reactors Branch will be affected; (b) some of Rickover's staff will leave; and (c) there will be a time lag that usually occurs when there is a change in a key post."

Meanwhile, Time was reported to have "killed" the article. The 23 Feb. issue of the news magazine carried no mention of Captain Rickover.

The Rickover History

THE JOURNAL files show that Captain Rickover was first considered for promotion to rear admiral in the fall of 1950 by a board headed by Vice Adm. Bernhard H. Bieri, who has since retired. Eight other officers served on the board. They were (in the ranks in which they were then serving): Vice Admirals Robert B. Carney, John L. McCrea, T. L. Sprague; Rear Admirals Ralph O. Davis, William A. Kitts, Thorvald A. Solberg, Louis Dreier and Wesley M. Hague.

This board selected a total of 18 officers, only four of whom were named from within the promotion zone. Two of the group were selected from above those (including Captain Rickover) who were in the zone, and 12 (or about 67 per cent) were selected from among junior officers who were below the promotion zone. Two of the latter group (James H. Thach and Frederick Trapnell) were among the junior officers who had testified against the Air Force B-36 program during the 1949 unification squabble.

The second board to consider Captain Rickover met in the summer of 1951. It was presided over by Admiral William M. Fechteler (the present Chief of Naval Operations). Other members were Vice Admirals John J. Ballentine, John H. Cassady, and Robert P. Briscoe; Rear Admirals Frank G. Fahrion, Francis C. Denebrink, Charles A. Nicholson, L. M. Grant and Paul B. Nibecker.

This board named 36 officers for promotion, picking up four of those who had been passed over by the previous year's board, and taking 25 (or about 70 per cent) from among junior officers below the promotion zone. Only seven officers were selected from within the actual promotion zone.

Forced Retirement

With this failure to be selected, Captain Rickover automatically became eligible for "forced" retirement under the Navy's "two times and out" law which specifies that an officer must retire after being passed over twice by statutory selection boards.

However, another law provides that engineering duty officers (of whom Captain Rickover is one) are permitted to complete 31 years of service. Since this requirement had not been fulfilled at the time of his second failure to be selected (and will not be fulfilled until 3 June of this year), Captain Rickover was permitted to remain on active duty.

When a selection board for flag officers was convened in the summer of 1952, Captain Rickover (although now above the promotion zone) was again eligible for consideration. This was due to the fact that captains once eligible for selection retain their eligibility until separated from the active list.

This board, headed by Vice Adm. John L. Hall, and composed of Vice Admirals John Dale Price, Francis S. Low, Matthias B. Gardner, Harold M. Martin, Ralph A. Ofstie, Rear Admirals Hugh E. Haven, Charles D. Wheelock and Wilson D. Leggett, Jr., named 30 officers for promotion to flag rank.

Drop Below Zone Again

For the third straight year the Navy board dropped far below the promotion zone to make the majority of its selections. One officer was selected from above the zone and six were selected from within the zone. This time 23 officers (or about 77 per cent) were selected from among junior officers below the zone. Included in this latter group was John H. Sides, another of the 13 active-duty Navy officers who testified against the B-36 in the 1949 inter-service controversy.

Navy promotion laws specify that the number of permanently commissioned officers who may be selected from below the promotion zone in the grades below captain may not exceed five per cent of the total number the board may select. However, in selecting captains for promotion to rear admiral, the board may select without restriction from among

Our 'Next Step' In Far East Not Told To Kremlin

AFTER taking time to listen to the calm and confident remarks of President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles, the nervous citizens of this and other countries who a week ago were alarmed over Far East prospects, by reason of their own fears, have settled down. The Seventh Fleet has followed its orders and withdrawn patrols set up two years ago to keep the Chinese Nationalists at home; no disaster has followed; no "next step" has been ordered; no raids have taken place, and no blockades; the enemy is left wondering what the "next step" will be, which is all to the good. And our fidgety people at home as well as equally alarmed allies abroad are left looking a bit foolish, not for the first time.

THE EPISODE IS USEFUL as evidence of the need for complete silence on plans, as distinguished from policy-outlines. For it is apparent that had either the President or the Secretary breathed a hint of what the "next step" will be, it would have been broadcast to the world, and the orderly pursuit of such a plan with any hope of its success would thereby have become impossible. It is a lesson which is not needed by professionals, but eternally needed by laymen; one dares forecast that when the "next step" is actually ordered and implemented there will be another scream from our Nervous Nellies about what the still later step is likely to be.

Among the extremely useful things said by President Eisenhower this week, in the first of his press conferences since taking office, one on this exact subject was outstanding. He stated that the reckless talk at home and abroad about a blockade of China sprang from others' conjectures, not from anything he had said. On the contrary, his assurance was that this sort of thing calls for long advance study, and that the determination of an action of such moment (as distinguished from field commands springing from a stated policy) would be preceded by discussions with Congressional leaders and conceivably by actual consideration by Congress. This, in view of Congressional anxiety on repeated occasions in past years over executive seizure of responsibilities which the legislative branch claims to share, is one of the most important of the new administration's pledges, admirably stated on this significant and timely occasion.

Marous, in The New York Times

"NOT DISCORD — JUST TUNING UP"

A RECENT "FIELD COMMAND" in the Far East, on the other hand, was promptly put into execution this past Monday. The occasion was another Russian airplane flight over Hokkaido, three miles within the frontier, against which specific warning had been issued a month ago. The two Russian planes were promptly intercepted by two U. S. Air Force Thunderjet pilots, whose warning shots were followed by Russian shots directed at the Americans; the Americans then shifted fire to the enemy planes, causing injury to one and driving both back to Russian territory. No immediate development is expected.

A FAR EAST DEVELOPMENT to which singularly little attention has been paid by American newspapers is this week's visit to Indo-China by Paul Reynaud, former premier of France, and Marshal Alphonse-Pierre Juin, the latter also planning a visit in Japan and Korea at the invitation of General Mark W. Clark. The point of special interest is Reynaud's declaration that the defeat of communism in Indo-China can finally be effected only by much larger participation on the part of the Vietnamese, rather than by added French forces. This has its interesting political as well as its military aspects—increasing authority for the Vietnamese, and one day the releasing of French troops for needed duty in Europe.

WHILE LAST WEEK'S BOMBING OUTRAGE in Palestine, resulting in casualties in the Soviet embassy, was pointedly referred to, Moscow's denunciation of Israel had obviously been decided upon long ago; the "anti-Zionist" purge in satellite nations was already well under way. The primary aim of Russia's present maneuver appears to be the hoodwinking of the Arab states. Those states had no compelling need of Moscow encouragement to oppose Israel, and the Moscow action has aroused their suspicions more than their enthusiasm. It is by their own devising that they made this week their call on Under Secretary of State W. Bedell Smith, to protest American grant to Israel of military aid which that embattled state has requested. It is an ingenious move, too, for whatever the American desire may be to provide aid to a state in which a great many American citizens of Jewish descent are profoundly interested, there also is a good deal of reluctance to antagonize the Arab states—notably Egypt—at just this stage. For we have never lost sight of the importance of a genuine Middle-East command integrated with the NATO command; we were party to last year's unsuccessful negotiations for a partnership which would include Britain, France, and Egypt, for the securing of Suez. Now that is still an interesting target, particularly since Naguib's vitalization of Egypt and his overtures to Britain on the Sudan settlement, American interest in keeping on good terms with Egypt and with the Arab states in general is real and large. But America also is interested, for more than one reason, in discouraging the ancient antagonism between Israel and the Arab states and, rather, is desirous of economic betterment and pacification for the whole Middle East. This very touchy situation is going to call for some of the State Department's best planning.

THE EUROPEAN DEFENSE COMMUNITY puzzle is not yet solved, but certainly it grows no worse. The terms once demanded by France are somewhat reduced, and there is a possibility of further easing through France's present discussions in London. The aim is for a firmer pledge of British (and American-Canadian) aid to France in emergency. An extension of the life of the whole North Atlantic Treaty Organization to 50 years is also proposed. With this assurance,

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Await Incentive Report—A Defense Department spokesman said late this week that the expected report of the Incentive Pay Commission has not yet been submitted to Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson.

A story in THE JOURNAL last week reported that barring last minute changes the Commission, headed by Rear Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, USNR (inact.), would probably recommend an increase in combat pay from $45 per month to $50 for enlisted men and $100 for officers, with more liberalized interpretation to extend benefits to an increased number of Naval personnel.

Another forecast was that the Commission would recommend continuation of present flight, submarine, diving pay, etc., but that tighter administration would be asked.

According to Pentagon sources, comments on a proposed final draft of the report were being received this week from Commission members. This means the report may be presented to Mr. Wilson next week.

Varied Army Assignments—The Army has made available to the House Armed Services Committee information which shows that hundreds of general and field grade officers now are filling assignments related to building the strength of our allies. According to testimony disclosed this week, there are about 1939 general and field grade officers assigned to missions, advisory groups and headquarters such as SHAPE which either command or in many other ways are associated with about 4,000,000 troops of allied countries in addition to those of the U. S. Army.

Brig. Gen. Herbert B. Powell, USA, informed the House Committee during hearings on the Davis Amendment that about 706 other general and field grade officers are assigned to governmental agencies outside the Army.

He said there are not enough senior officers to fill requirements imposed by various missions, advisory groups and high-level command organizations in addition to the basic functions of the Army and the conduct of hostilities in Korea.

General Powell said: "Congressional approval of such activities as NATO, SHAPE and military assistance to friendly countries associated in our common defense effort establishes these requirements for senior officers and, if our officers are largely outranked, they cannot perform their duties effectively. In Korea, if they are to provide the type of capable and forceful leadership that is so necessary, they should be given the rank and pay commensurate with their position and responsibilities."

Association Merger Likely—On the basis of early voting, it appears that a proposal for merger with the Association of the U. S. Army, publishers of the monthly Combat Forces Journal will win overwhelming endorsement from members of the U. S. Antiaircraft Association, which publishes the Antiaircraft Journal. The current issue of the Antiaircraft Journal reports that 919 members have voted for the merger against 82 who are opposed. Balloting ends 28 Feb. It was reported that in any event the March-April issue of the Antiaircraft Journal will be published.

According to the Antiaircraft Journal, the net worth of the Association of the U. S. Army on 30 June 1952 was $226,128.44 with a circulation of 33,000 for its journal, while the U. S. Antiaircraft Association, at last audit, had a net worth of $64,004.02 and a circulation of 7700.

ROA Hits Regular Ranks—According to the Reserve Officers Association president, Capt. Robert G. Burke, USNR, "there has been a serious inflation of rank in all of the Regular Services and we believe it is time that something be done about it by the Congress of the United States."

Captain Burke made this statement in a letter to Representative Dewey Short (R-Mo.), chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. The letter, released by Captain Burke, was signed by the association's executive director.

Captain Burke said there should be an investigation of the entire problem of higher rank in all of the Services "so that a fair and equitable solution may be worked out within the structure of the Officer Personnel Act."

Col. Mitchell To AEC Post—The Atomic Energy Commission this week announced the appointment of Col. William Mitchell, as General Counsel. He served in 1951 as Special Assistant to the Secretary of the Air Force on Overseas Bases and was instrumental in reaching agreement with France for bases in Morocco, with Denmark for bases in Greenland, and with Iceland for bases in that country.

Admiral Strauss Dissents Again—Rear Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, USNR, (inact.) who dissented to a recommendation made by the Committee on National Security Organization of the Hoover Commission in 1948 has reaffirmed his stand this week.

A member of the Sarnoff Commission, Admiral Strauss said in a letter to Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, USAR, chairman, that he could not endorse Section 11 of the Manpower Commission's report.

This section states: "Our studies and observations have convinced us that Unification of the Armed Services thus far has been achieved only in part. It must be extended much farther if the benefits expected from Unification are to be realized."

Admiral Strauss comments: "One part of the Report, Section 11, deals with the subject of Unification. This we have not hitherto discussed. I would have to reserve concurrence with this in some manner or contradict the position which I took as a member of the Task Force which reported on reorganization of the Armed Services for the Hoover Commission."

As a member of the Hoover Commission task force, Admiral Strauss did not concur with a recommendation which would have greatly strengthened the Secretary of Defense's authority over the Service secretaries. The report says: "Mr. Strauss felt that removal of the right of appeal to the President heretofore specifically reserved by statute to the three Service Secretaries would so lower their standing as to make it more difficult to obtain men of proper caliber for such appointments."

"Mr. Strauss believed that it would also impair the influence and authority of the three Service Secretaries within their own departments; and finally, that it would encourage resort to unofficial channels in support of differences of opinion within the Department of Defense."

Admiral Strauss' reaction this week to the Sarnoff Commission recommendation shows his continued concern over the Unification problem, particularly his desire to insure the separate status of the Services and their civilian and military leaders.

MEMO

To Journal Readers

...Armed Forces personnel, who must move fast and frequently, are fearful that they will be hit by HIGHER LIVING COSTS when rent controls are relaxed. Defense Dept. studies show that MILITARY FAMILIES who must live off the post spend relatively more for rent than other groups of citizens.

...The Army has estimated, in response to a Congressional inquiry, that if draftees served THREE YEARS instead of two, the savings in fiscal '53 would be of the order of half a billion dollars. Representative Sikes (D-Fla.) commented to Army G-1 officials: "I realize very probably NOTHING IS GOING TO BE DONE about it, but the fact remains that (2-year term) is one of the costliest things and presents one of the GREATEST DIFFICULTIES you have to overcome..."

...Army airborne enthusiasts are delighted with the 1952 SAFETY RECORD at the Ft. Benning, Ga., parachute training center. A total of 1840 officers and 12,810 enlisted men made 74,705 training jumps without a single fatality. Three GENERAL OFFICERS were included among the graduates — one of them Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., present Infantry Center C. G.

...The dismal prospects for Armed Forces WARRANT OFFICERS in the absence of the long-delayed W. O. Promotion Bill is grimly disclosed in Capitol Hill testimony which shows that there are fourteen (correct 14) warrant officers in grade W-4. This is TEN LESS than the number of VICE ADMIRALS. The Navy has 1,371 W-3 Warrant Officers, 2,858 W-2 and 1,721 W-1.

...An AF publication reports that instead of maroon and gold in CHAPEL draperies, candelabra, pulpit and altar covers, crucifixes, etc., AF colors of BLUE AND SILVER are being substituted.

...A suggestion made to the Sarnoff Commission that FEDERALIZATION of the National Guard might be investigated as a source for possible manpower savings could result in a VOCIFEROUS REACTION from Guard Officers. The proposal, however, was never acted upon by the Commission. It's virtually the first mention of the subject since the GRAY REPORT during the service of the first SecDef, James Forrestal.

...There were reports at the Pentagon this week that Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson may recommend appointment of a FOURTH ASST. SECRETARY of Defense to be in charge of supply. If this action is taken, it would mean diminished importance for the Munitions Board, which has had no PERMANENT CHAIRMAN since the resignation, effective 20 Jan., of Mr. John Small. At present there are three Assistant Secretaries of Defense: W. J. McNeil, who is the Comptroller; Frank C. Nash, responsible for International Affairs; and John A. Hannah, Manpower.

...The 2% limitation on the number of permanent colonels in the Army MEDICAL SERVICE CORPS was called to the attention of the Sarnoff Commission. It was pointed out that with more MSC colonels, more doctors could be released from ADMINISTRATIVE DUTIES. Congress has been asked to boost from 2 to 8% the permanent colonel MSC ceiling.

...The Navy estimates that the conversion to a SINGLE CATALOGUE for all defense items will cost 14,500,000 man hours and $33 million.

Are you overseas or,
are you going overseas?

Do you want automobile insurance that will cover in Japan and Western Europe, in Puerto Rico and in the Philippines, as well as in the States? We do not insure "everywhere" but we do follow our policyholders to many parts of the world—and what's more we have claims facilities in out-of-the-way places.

Write and tell us where you are or where you expect to go and we will tell you what we can do about your automobile insurance.

We air-vibrate blades to get longer life in jet engines

You recall the old trick in which a singer shatters a glass by holding a high note at the critical vibration frequency of the glass.

Here at Allison we use a similar idea to determine the fatigue life of jet engine compressor and turbine blades. By electro-magnetic, air jet (as pictured) or siren excitation, we stress-cycle the blade at increasing vibration amplitudes until its endurance limit is reached. This enables us to predict "critical" engine speeds—and with this data we modify blade design for higher performance and longer service life.

Then we go a step further: The information obtained in these laboratory tests is checked by installing strain gages on blades in running engines. This stress-measuring equipment had to be specially designed by Allison engineers to meet the high temperatures, since gages of this type were not commercially available. Many Allison engine improvements have been based upon the results of these tests.

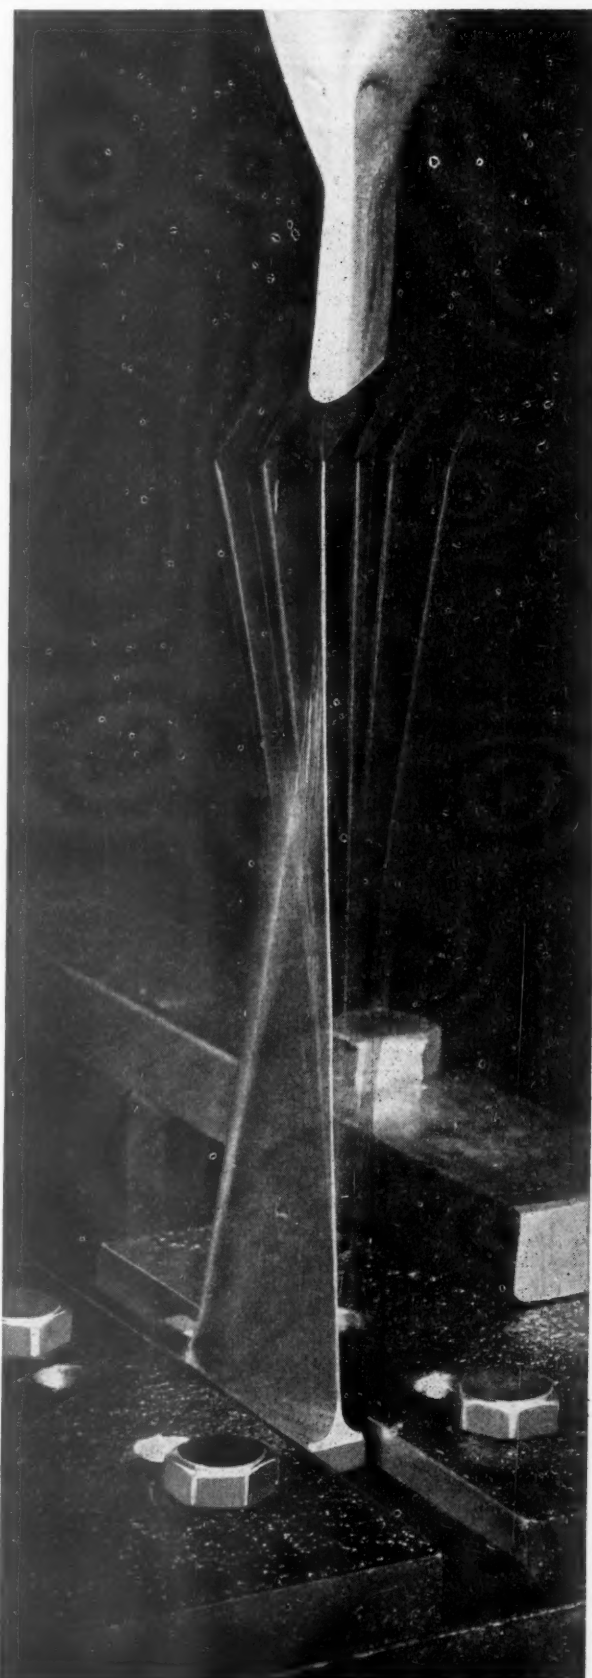

All of this is one example of the engineering thoroughness that goes into every Allison jet engine—a thoroughness that pays off in the greater dependability that has won the confidence of American jet pilots everywhere.

Guide words for today—

Posterity! You will never know how much it cost the present generation to preserve your freedom. I hope you will make good use of it.

—JOHN QUINCY ADAMS

The life span of America's 6th President—1767 to 1848—covered the turbulent years of the nation's birth, and the greatest tests of its determination to remain free. Adams fought slavery within the country, and as Secretary of State advocated the Monroe Doctrine. As well as any, he knew the great cost of preserving freedom.

His words might have been spoken by many Presidents in our history. Protecting our liberty is a continuing task to which every generation has contributed, and to which every future generation must be dedicated.

With clear understanding and a unified effort on the part of business, labor and government, future generations will still have the opportunity to "make good use" of freedom—under which mankind's greatest progress has been made.

W B Stewart

Army Navy Air Force Journal 743
21 February 1953

OQMG Division Chief

Col. William E. Barksdale, QMC, is announced as Chief, Personnel and Training Division, OQMG, Vice Col. Carroll B. Henderson, QMC, Acting Chief, who is reassigned to Office of Deputy for Administration. The changes were effective 16 Feb.

Lt. Col. John B. McLaughlin, QMC, who has been serving as Acting Chief, Training Branch, Personnel and Training Division, OQMG, is assigned as Chief of the Branch, effective the same date.

Col. Edwin G. Beggs, QMC was relieved as Chief, General Supplies Branch, Distribution Division and assigned to Administrative Division, effective 20 Feb.

VULCAN NEEDED AN ANVIL...

But Philco forged a mighty weapon with a change of name! When the Armed Forces needed vast quantities of Microwave Radio Relay equipment, Philco's standard commercial product met the exacting requirements without change! Philco Advanced Design Microwave already contained JAN-approved components and military type plug-in assemblies. So with only the change of name from Philco Advanced Design Microwave to AN/TRC-30, it was ready for military use.

Philco Microwave equipment is designed for utmost reliability, flexibility and ease of maintenance... qualities demanded without compromise by the Armed Forces. Philco's ability to surpass these rigid standards provided the Armed Forces with an immediate source of vital communications equipment.

Today, as always, forward-thinking Philco stands ready to develop and produce advanced electronics equipment to meet any need of the Government and the Armed Forces.

Military Funds Cut

in all probability be absorbed out of current funds."

The Committee asked Congress to broaden the authority for transfer of funds by the Secretary of Defense. Suggested sources were air base construction funds for the Air Force and Army maintenance and operation funds.

After the Committee's report approving the necessity for the requests but withholding new appropriations was made public, questions were raised in Congress as to whether this meant a cut-back in military spending.

Service officials are hopeful that the supplemental funds will be voted, so that previously planned projects will not have to be abandoned or necessary maintenance and operations expenditures be eliminated.

The only item the Committee rejected was a request for $11 million by the Army to cover station allowance costs under the Joint Travel Regulations.

and lieutenants, nor for Navy lieutenants. Vacancies within the prescribed allowances may be assigned to any lower grade.

The subcommittee named to study the Officer Personnel Act includes Republicans: Arends (Ill.), Chairman; Van Zandt (Pa.); Patterson (Conn.); Bates (Mass.); Nelson (Me.); O'Konski (Wis.). Democrats: Kilday (Tex.); Rivers (S. C.); Hebert (La.); Hardy (Va.); Miller (Calif.).

Marine Corps Needs 150 More Lt. Colonels

The Marine Corps again has asked Congress to repeal the Davis Amendment "in its entirety," and failing that to "at least" amend it so as to allow the Corps 1,350 lieutenant colonels—150 more than it has at present, and 164 more than permitted by the Davis rider.

The restrictive rider "is particularly troublesome" to the Marine Corps "in the grade of lieutenant colonel," according to Maj. Gen. Walter W. Wensinger, Marine Deputy Chief of Staff.

Maj. Gen. Wensinger

General Wensinger told the House Armed Services Committee this week that "the proportionally greatest numerical inadequacy" exists in this grade and the situation "is further aggravated by the fact that Lieutenant colonel is the Marine Corps' most critical grade."

Five More Generals

General Wensinger said the Corps also needs five more general officers than it is permitted by the amendment, seven more majors, and 217 more captains. On 31 December, the Corps had the following number of officers serving in the grades indicated:

General—59	Captain—4,428
Colonel—516	1st Lieutenant—3,303
Lt. Colonel—1,200	2d Lieutenant—5,152
Major—2,470

By 30 June of this year, however, it will require 64 generals, 546 colonels, 1,350 lieutenant colonels, 2,515 majors, 5,556 captains, 4,067 first lieutenants and 5,726 second lieutenants.

The Davis Amendment, he said, would limit the Corps to these numbers in the five top grades:

General—59	Major—2,522
Colonel—516	Captain—5,339
Lt. Colonel—1,186

This means that if the rider is not repealed by the Congress, the Marines will not be able to make any promotions from the rank of colonel, only 30 from the rank of lieutenant colonel, only 16 from the rank of major and only 68 from the rank of captain.

New Concept for Colonels

General Wensinger disclosed that the Marine Corps, prior to any indication that the Davis proposal would be made, had embarked on a new concept for promotion of officers to the grade of colonel. General Lemuel C. Shepherd, jr., Marine Corps Commandant, "directed that a study be made," he said, "with a view to changing the concept that prevailed with regard to the requirements in the grades of colonel and lieutenant colonel. He advocated the down-grading of colonel billets in an effort to economize in the expenditure of officer experience, and to permit fuller experience in the lieutenant colonels grade by all officers prior eligible officers who are junior to those in the zone.

It is interesting to note in this connection that Navy selection boards for the past five years have consistently selected larger and larger percentages of officers from below the set promotion zones. The 1948 board dropped 183 names below the zone to promote ex-President Truman's Naval Aide, Robert L. Denison.

The 1949 board dipped 175 names below the zone to pick 16 officers; seven others were selected from above the zone, and none were selected from within the zone. One of the junior officers named from below the zone was Rear Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, another of the Navy leaders in the B-36 revolt. Other juniors were Rear Admirals Richard P. Glass and Richard W. Ruble (aides to then Secretary of the Navy Francis P. Matthews), and Rear Adm. Thomas B. Williamson (aide to then Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson).

Praise GI's in Korea

"American soldiers in Korea have the highest morality of any group of people in the world," in the opinion of an Episcopal clergyman who just completed a tour of the warfront.

"Morality is fundamentally charity," the Right Rev. Austin Pardue, Episcopal Bishop of Pittsburgh, said. "If the American people at home gave proportionately, there wouldn't be any poverty or want." The Right Rev. Pardue cited the 65 orphanages in the Seoul district operated by Air Force and ground forces as examples of GI charity and goodwill.

Honor Navy Dentists

Rear Adm. Ralph W. Malone (DC) USN, Inspector General (Dental), represented Rear Adm. D. W. Ryan, Chief of the Dental Division, at the Pierre Fauchard Academy's 1952 Gold Medal award ceremonies 7 Feb. at Chicago.

The medal is presented annually by the Pierre Fauchard Academy, a dental society, to dental officers in the Armed Forces in recognition of unusual, outstanding and distinguished services to the dental profession.

What it takes to silence a pillbox!

Steel: 90,000 lbs.

Rubber: 1,800 lbs.

Copper: 2,000 lbs.

Bronze: 100 lbs.

Specialized Personnel: 5

A single blast from a 105 mm. howitzer can reduce a pillbox to smoldering silence! This tremendous firepower is awesome... only a mount of great strength can withstand its recoil.

American Machine and Foundry Company's vast manufacturing facilities guide the production of these mounts from initial stage to the time they're ready for action.

AMF is pleased to make its contribution to Army Ordnance. Along with thousands of other companies we are utilizing industrial skill and speed to insure America's military readiness.

MRS. Dwight D. Eisenhower was the honor guest when the Senior Jangoes held their monthly luncheon at the Army-Navy Country Club, on 17 Feb. Mrs. J. Robert Ryan, president, presided.

Mrs. Eisenhower wore a dark tailored suit with a pin stripe, a very attractive close fitting hat and a blue mink stole. A corsage of white orchids adorned her suit.

A most enjoyable program had been arranged by Mrs. Leo George Clarke, jr. Guest speaker for the occasion was Mrs. Ethel Ernest Murrell, lecturer, author, lawyer and National Chairman of the National Woman's Party. Elizabeth Garay DuVal, noted Hungarian concert violinist, gave several selections of Hungarian music and was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Clarke.

Seated at the main table with Mrs. Eisenhower and Mrs. Ryan were Mesdames Frank Pace, jr., J. Lawton Collins, John F. Floberg, Francis S. Low, Orval R. Cook, Charles P. Cabell, Stanley L. Scott, George A. Horkan, James A. Hirschfield, Harold Jackson, Jack P. Juhan and J. M. Burnside, all members of the board of directors. With them also were Mesdames S. D. Sturgis, Clarke, DuVal, Stuart Riddle, jr., F. R. Miller, Jouett Shouse and George C. Lindsay.

Reception for President—

President and Mrs. Eisenhower were the honored guests of the Congressional Club at their annual reception for the Chief Executive and First Lady, Monday afternoon, in the club house on New Hampshire avenue. The Marine Band played.

The Presidential group was accompanied by the military aide, Lt. Col. Robert L. Schultz, USA, and Lt. Comdr. Karl Pfeifer, White House aide.

Mrs. Eisenhower wore a frock of leaf green taffeta-full skirt and fitted bodice, a black bodice studded in jet beads for a hat and a brace of white orchids tipped with scarlet.

Mrs. Wilson, wife of the Secretary of Defense was modish in a gown of amethyst crepe, her hat a confection of cerise straw.

Honor New Secretaries—

The Secretary of Defense and Mrs. Charles E. Wilson were the guests of honor at a dinner party Monday evening, given by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and Mrs. Omar N. Bradley at Ft. Myer.

Mrs. Wilson left Washington Tuesday for a brief trip in Florida, having found the festivities of the Inauguration and welcoming hospitalities a bit strenuous.

The Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Robert T. Stevens were also dinner guests at Ft. Myer Monday evening, their hosts being the Army Vice Chief of Staff and Mrs. John E. Hull. Secretary and Mrs. Stevens were complimented the preceding week by the Chief of Staff and Mrs. J. Lawton Collins at their quarters at Ft. Lesley J. McNair.

The Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. Harold E. Talbot are to be dinner guests of the Chief of Staff of the Air Force and Mrs. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Monday the 23d.

Visitors from Formosa—

Honors have been showered upon the distinguished military visitors from Formosa, Vice Admiral Ma Chi-Chuang, Chief of Naval Operations and Maj. Gen. Chou Yu-Huan, Commandant of the Chinese Marine Corps. Festivities began with a brilliant dinner party given by the Commandant of the U. S. Marine Corps and Mrs. Lemuel C. Shepherd,

Col. McGregor to Ft. Ord—

Col. Thomas McGregor having been ordered to Ft. Ord, Calif., he will leave in March, but Mrs. McGregor will remain until after the commencement exercises at West Point in June, when their two sons, Rob Roy and Thomas graduate. Colonel and Mrs. McGregor own a home at Pebble Beach, where they will live.

Cadet Thomas McGregor will marry, after his graduation, Miss Colette Thayer, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Arthur P. Thayer, the wedding being planned to take place at the Ft. Myer Chapel.

Cotillion for Juniors—

The Army-Navy-Air Force Cotillion sponsored by the Class of 1924, U. S. Military Academy will hold the third of this season's series of dances for the junior service set in honor of George Washington's birthday tonight, 21 Feb. at the Hop Hall, Ft. Myer, Va.

Col. and Mrs. Cleland C. Sibley, Col. and Mrs. Cary J. King, and Col. and Mrs. Perry Griffith will receive at the dance. The committee will be assisted by Cecilia Hanley, Sally and Suzan Hart, Roy Kirkpatrick, Donald Baughman and Bob Dewey acting as junior hosts and hostesses.

Navy Supply Corps Wives—

The Navy Supply Corps Officers' Wives' Club of Washington held its regular monthly luncheon on 10 Feb. at the Army Navy Country Club. Mrs. Murrey L. Royer, president and wife of Rear Admiral Royer, Chief of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, was joined in the receiving line by Mrs. Frank B. Dunham, wife of Rear Admiral Dunham, Mrs. Arthur T. Hoadley, Executive Secretary of the District of Columbia Auxiliary of the Navy Relief Society, Mrs. I. N. Tripi, executive chairman, and Mrs.

W. A. Evans, luncheon's chairman. Mrs. Hoadley, as guest speaker, gave a very comprehensive talk on the functions of the Navy Relief Society.

Following the luncheon Mrs. Royer, on behalf of the Club, presented a wheel chair to the Anderson Orthopedic Hospital of Arlington, Va, which was accepted by Mr. Dean A. Engh, Administrator of the Hospital. Mrs. D. O. Lacey, treasurer, and Mrs. B. L. Rainey, corresponding secretary, joined in the presentation ceremony.

The dining room and table decorations were in keeping with the spirit of Valentine. The Decorations Committee consisted of Mrs. H. F. Humphreys, Mrs. S. K. Anderson, Mrs. G. J. De Simone, Mrs. L. G. Maxwell, and Mrs. R. F. Newsome, jr.

Medical Service Wives Meet—

The February luncheon for the wives of the Medical Service officers stationed in the Washington area was held at the Walter Reed Officers' Mess on 3 Feb.

Mrs. Streit, wife of Maj. Gen. Paul Streit, Commanding General of the Walter Reed Army Medical Center, presided at the head table and greeted members and guests. Mrs. Hartman, wife of Col. Joseph L. Hartman, recently designated as the new Chief of the Veterinary Corps, was introduced to those present.

Engineer Wives Organize—

At a meeting held on 11 February under the guidance of Mrs. Samuel D. Sturgis, wife of the Chief of Engineers, a representative group of the Engineer Officers' wives of the Washington area voted to organize in an effort to draw the Engineer wives into a more compact group.

It was decided that an appointed board, in lieu of elected officers, for the time being, would be the most efficient means of directing the women's activities. This board, consisting of the chairmen of committees already in existence and of newly formed committees, will hold regular monthly meetings, the first to take place on 11 March at the Army-Navy Country Club.

The board, as now formed, consists of: Chairman, Mrs. Samuel D. Sturgis; Vice-Chairman, Mrs. Bernard L. Robinson;

Treasurer, Mrs. John R. Hardin; Secretary, Mrs. William C. Hall; Hospital Committee Chairman, Mrs. John H. Dudley; Hostess Committee Chairman, Mrs. John G. Ladd; Blood Donor Program Chairman, Mrs. Clinton F. Robinson; Entertainment Chairman, Mrs. Wright Hiatt; Membership Chairman, Mrs. Allen Jensen; Publicity, Mrs. Alvin C. Welling.

In addition to the above, a representative from Ft. Belvoir will be invited to attend the board meetings.

DAR to Hear Talk—

Col. J. E. Raymond, Camp Commander of Camp A. P. Hill, Va., will give an illustrated talk on the Assassination of Lincoln at the monthly meeting of the Washington Chapter, Daughters of the United States Army, to be held at 1 P. M. on 2 March, in the ballroom of the Burlington Hotel, 1120 Vermont Ave., N. W. Colonel Raymond has made an extensive study of this subject and is considered an authority. The day's activities will start with a business meeting at 11:15 followed by a social hour from 12:00 to 1:00. For reservations call Mrs. R. V. Cramer, Decatur 2-4861 before Thursday evening 26 Feb. Newcomers to Washington and vicinity who are eligible to belong to the D.U.S.A. may apply for membership to Mrs. V. S. Foster at OV 3-1241.

MISS PATRICIA ANN WEST daughter of Mr. Ronald Smith West of Cincinnati and the late Mrs. West (Margaret Dillencourt) has become engaged to Mr. Robert Miller Newbold, son of Maj. and Mrs. Ernest Miller Newbold of Ft. Belvoir, Va.

Miss West is attending the University of Cincinnati, where she is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma. Weddings and Engagements

THE Langley AFB Chapel, Hampton, Va., on 7 Feb., was the setting for the marriage of Miss Marion Cannon, daughter of General and Mrs. John K. Cannon, USAF, 150 Benedict Ave., Langley AFB, and Capt. George W. Hoppe, son of Mr. and Mrs. August Hoppe, of 602 Eagle Rock Ave., West Orange, N. J.

The wedding vows were solemnized by Chaplain (Maj.) Vernon O. Rogers, Langley AFB chaplain. A reception in the Williamsburg Room of the Langley Officers' Club followed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, who is Commanding General of the Tactical Air Command, the bride wore a gown of antique ivory Italian satin, made with a fitted bodice finished with a scalloped neckline, long sleeves and a full skirt with a wide circular train. She wore an heirloom veil of Brussels lace, and carried a cascade bouquet of Cymbidium orchids and Stephanotis.

Mrs. R. Glen Brewer, of Los Angeles, Calif., sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Other bridal attendants were the Misses Margaret Cannon, sister of the bride, Eleanor Hoppe, sister of the bridegroom, of West Orange, N. J., and Anita G. Wiehe, of Hampton, Va.

Miss Nancy Brewer, daughter of the bride's sister, was the flower girl.

Robert Carnrick, of Montclair, N. J., was the best man. Ushers included Capt. Thomas J. Evans, and Lts. Robert M. Bristol, Evan E. Smith and John Behrend, all of Langley AFB.

The choir was under the direction of Mrs. A. A. Angelucci, of Newport News, Va., and the organist was T/Sgt. Jack Wells, of Langley AFB.

After a wedding trip, Captain and Mrs. Hoppe will reside at 305 Gilbert St., Hampton, Va.

The bride attended Centenary College, Shreveport, La., and the University of Utah, Salt Lake City. She also studied abroad at the University of Neuchatel, Switzerland.

Captain Hoppe, who attended Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, N. J., is an operations staff officer at Tactical Air Command Headquarters at Langley AFB. He served with the Air Force in Europe during World War II, and later with the Far East Air Forces in Japan.

BOLTE-CHRISTIANSEN—Miss Lorel Mae Christiansen, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. James G. Christiansen, became the bride of Lt. Philip Lawrence Bolte, son of Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Charles L. Bolte, USA, Saturday, 14 Feb., at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Leroy W. Raley performed the ceremony in Chapel 1.

General Bolte is the newly appointed Commanding General of the U. S. Army in Europe.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length gown of white Chantilly lace and nylon tulle with a chapel train. Her bouquet was of white roses and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor was Miss Ann Reinhardt, a student at the University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo. Bridesmaids were Miss Damara Bolte, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Alice Bready.

Lt. David Endicott Bolte, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

The bride and bridegroom left the altar under an arch of crossed sabres formed by ushers Capt. Robert Hughes and Lts. Reuben L. Anderson, Thomas T. Jones, George E. Lear, George Oliver and James Donovan.

A reception at the Post Officers' Open Mess followed the wedding.

Out-of-town guests included Maj. and Mrs. Foster of Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.; Lt. James Howden, Ft. Knox, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. LeCompte Joslin, Mr. and Mrs. Sands and Mrs. E. Aston, Rolla; and Miss Lynsey Purdue, Stephens College, Columbia, Mo.

KING-CAMPBELL—Brig. Gen. and Mrs. William P. Campbell of 3232 Gunston Rd., Parkfairfax, Alexandria, Va., announce the engagement of their daughter Terri, to Lt. Thomas G. B. King, USN. The wedding date has been set for 4 April in Alexandria, Va. The ceremony will take place in Christ Episcopal Church which was General George Washington's place of worship.

Miss Campbell was graduated Cum Laude from the University of Arkansas in 1951 and is doing graduate work in audiology and speech pathology at Maryland University from which she will receive her Master of Arts Degree in June.

Lieutenant King, a graduate of the University of New Mexico, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Barrett King of Chicago, Ill. He served in the Pacific during World War II. A member of the Naval Reserve, he was recalled to active duty on 10 Nov. 1950. He is stationed at the Pentagon with the Office of Information, Department of Navy. He will be released from active duty this month, at which time he will join the Public Relations staff of Packard Motor Car Company in Detroit.

JENKINS-ENNIS—Brig. Gen. and Mrs. William Pierce Ennis, jr., of Ft. Bliss, Tex., announce the marriage of their daughter, Kathleen, on 7 Feb., at the Emmanuel Episcopal Church, Alexandria, Va., to Mr. Theodore Locke Jenkins, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Edward Jenkins of Princeton, N. J.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Vice Adm. Frank G. Fahrion, USN, and her only attendant was her sister, Mrs. William Thomas Leggett of Ft. Bragg, N. C. Following the ceremony, a small reception was held for family and close friends, at the home of the bride's cousins, Col. and Mrs. James W. Totten.

The bride was graduated from Miss Porter's School and from Duke University. She is the granddaughter of Brig. Gen. William Pierce Ennis, USA-Ret., and Mrs. Ennis of Vineyard Haven, Mass., and of Col. Thomas Francis Dwyer, USA-Ret., and Mrs. Dwyer of Newport, R. I. The bridegroom attended Princeton University and served in the Army in Germany during World War II.

RANN-MOORE—The U. S. Naval Academy Chapel, Annapolis, Md., was the setting for the marriage of Miss Diane LaMonte Moore to Lt. (jg) George Chester Rann, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rann of Cologne, N. J. The bride is the daughter of Mr. William Gerald Moore, 2d, of Mansfield, Ohio, and the late Mrs. Moore.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace and accordion-pleated ivory tulle, designed with a fitted bodice and bouffant skirt. Her tulle veil was attached to a Dutch cap of heirloom Brussels lace, and she carried a bouquet of white orchids, freesia and lilies-of-the-valley. Mrs. Jones Walter Smyth of Baltimore, Md., was her matron of honor, and Miss Elizabeth Hope Moore served as maid of honor. Lt. (jg) James R. Schmolter, USN, of Washington, D. C., was best man. Ushering were Lts. Mark A. Pitz, Bardey Martin, John F. Donovan, S. Preston Crowell, Charles B. Oldfield and Milton O. Sachse.

Mrs. Rann is an alumna of Georgetown Visitation Convent and the College of Notre Dame of Maryland. Her husband was graduated from Rutgers University. He served in the Pacific theater during World War II.

Upon their return from a wedding trip to the Virgin Islands, Lieutenant Rann and his bride will make their home at the Naval Air Station at Hutchinson, Kans.

DOLLARD-CARPENTER—The wedding of Miss Joan Carpenter, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Giles R. Carpenter of Ft. Monroe, Va., and Lt. Mark Thomas Dollard of Troy, N. Y., the son of Mrs. Thomas Vincent Dollard and the late

MRS. GEORGE CHESTER RANN was Miss Diane LaMonte Moore before her marriage on 17 Jan. at the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, to Lt. (jg) Rann, USN.

Thomas Vincent Dollard of Troy, was solemnized 16 Feb. in the Chapel of the Centurion at historic Ft. Monroe.

Colonel Carpenter, who is Deputy Chief of Staff for Army Field Forces, escorted his daughter up the center aisle of the candlelit chapel to the altar, where he gave her in marriage. The nuptial service was conducted by Monsignor R. J. Sherry, OCAFF chaplain. Mr. James Barnes of Hampton was the organist.

Miss Carpenter chose as her bridal attire a formal model of ivory lace and nylon net. The bouffant skirt was fashioned of alternating panels of pleated lace and net. The fitted bodice of ivory lace was made with a low, bateau neckline and long fitted sleeves, ending in points over the hands.

The bridal veil of illusion net draped from a tiny tiara of lace, which was worn by Miss Carpenter, had been used by her mother when she became the bride of Colonel Carpenter in Watertown, N. Y. An heirloom lace handkerchief, first used by Miss Carpenter's maternal grandmother, Mrs. E. K. Harroun of Watertown, N. Y., at her wedding, also was carried by the bride. Her bouquet was a cascading arrangement of white orchids, white stephanotis and white lilies.

Attending Miss Carpenter as the honor attendant was her sister, Miss Ann Carpenter. The bridesmaids were Miss Vera Williamson of Augusta, Ga., a cousin of the bride; Miss Elizabeth King of Phelps, N. Y., and Miss Dorothy Butts of Arlington, Va.

The bridegroom had his cousin, Mr. Henry H. Hohenstein of Coxsackie, N. Y., as the best man. The ushers were Lt. Thomas D. Roark of Gardner, Mass., who is stationed at Ft. Monroe; Lt. William C. Krucke of Irvington, N. J.; Lt. William A. Razor of Wadsworth, Ohio, and Lt. J. Richard Price of Madison, Wis., all of whom serve at Ft. Eustis with the bridegroom.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Dollard greeted the wedding guests, including many friends from Williamsburg, Va., where the Carpenter family lived for three years, in the Williamsburg Room of the Ft. Monroe Officers' Casemate Club during the reception.

At the reception Miss Patricia V. Finn of Washington, D. C., was the mistress of ceremonies, and Miss Ann Crabill was in charge of the guest book. In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Harroun, the bride's maternal grandparents, and Mrs. Dollard, the out-of-town guests coming to Ft. Monroe for the wedding included Brig. Gen. and Mrs. J. D. Balmer of Arlington, Va., Col. and Mrs. B. A. Day of Washington, D. C., Col. and Mrs. L. R. Norman of Falls Church, Va., Col. and Mrs. Walter Soderholm of Point Harbor, N. C., Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Butts of Arlington, Va., Mr. and Mrs. F. L. King of Phelps, N. Y., Mrs. G. M. Williamson of Augusta, Ga., an aunt of the bride; Mrs. C. H. Hohenstein of Coxsackie, N. Y., an aunt of the bridegroom, and Miss Arline Kennedy, also of Coxsackie, N. Y.

On their return from a honeymoon, Lieutenant and Mrs. Dollard will occupy their first home, a country cottage near Williamsburg.

The bride attended The Masters' School at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and was graduated from William and Mary in 1951. She is a member of the Chi Omega Sorority, Phi Beta Kappa and Mortar Board. She has spent a part of her life abroad, first in the Philippines where her father was stationed, and for a year in Wels, Austria, where Colonel Carpenter served with the Occupation Army.

Lieutenant Dollard was graduated with the class of '51 from the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N. Y., where he was affiliated with the Phi Kappa Fraternity. He was employed by General Electric in Albany, N. Y., prior to his call to active service in the Army last May. He is a marine engineer, assigned to the 3rd Port at Ft. Eustis.

HOLMGREN-HITCHCOCK — Miss Joan Hitchcock, daughter of Maj. Louis M. Hitchcock, USA-Ret., and Mrs. Hitchcock of Brentwood, Calif., will become the bride of Lt. (jg) Horace Gilbert Holmgren, USCG, in the early Spring.

Miss Hitchcock was graduated from Mt. Vernon Seminary and Junior College, Washington, D. C. Her fiancé, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert H. Holmgren of Alameda, Calif., was graduated from the U. S. Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn., and is stationed at Alameda.

The wedding will take place at Beverly Hills, Calif., on 14 March.

PHILADELPHIA, PA. The first anniversary of the Officers' Wives Club of the Army Signal Corps Supply Agency was celebrated at the 12 Feb. meeting held at the Signal Corps Building, Rittenhouse Square. A charter member, Mrs. Brookman R. Painter, who was dressed in Japanese costume, told of some of her experiences in Japan in a talk entitled, "Family Life in Japan."

Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. Robert T. Walker and Mrs. Michael Kolton. Mrs. Eugene L. Weeks and Mrs. Walter T. Johnson were in charge of flowers. Annual election of officers will be held in March.

CAMP GUYNEMER, FONTAINEBLEAU, FRANCE. Another example of U. S. Air Force-Navy cooperation has cropped up — this time in France.

In response to an appeal for aid to a group of French orphans, made by USAF officers' wives in Fontainebleau, France, the Navy Student Officers Wives Club in Monterey, Calif., sent the largest single contribution — 68 boxes of clothing, canned food and CARE packages.

This group of U. S. Air Force wives has been partially supporting a French girls' orphanage for the past year. To increase their assistance program they recently turned to relatives, friends and women's clubs in the United States. Several organizations responded quickly to the request.

Through the efforts of the Air Force wives, welfare-minded groups in America, and a $1,000 contribution made on behalf of Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, former Assistant Secretary of Defense, 61 French girls at "La Genevraie" Orphanage in Montigny, France, are wearing new winter coats, shoes, and for the first time in several years are enjoying meat and milk with their meals.

As vital as all these contributions are, the USAF wives have made their assistance campaign even more personal and convincing with weekly visits to the children, special parties, and projects to redecorate the rooms in the gray, austere building where the children live.

The enterprising efforts of these Americans have not only elevated the standard of living for 61 French orphans, but have made a significant inroad in fostering good Franco-American relations in this small French village.

U. S. WIVES HELP OUT

BURTONWOOD, ENGLAND. Typical of the international goodwill fostered by wives of U. S. servicemen was the speed with which the Officers Wives Club and the NCO Wives Club here swung into action to aid the victims of the flood disaster on the east coast of England. In a single day, a C-47 plane-load of clothing was gathered and on its way. In less than a week, 9000 pounds of clothing were dispatched in three planes.

REDSTONE ARSENAL, ALA. All kinds of hats were the attraction at a tea given 10 Feb. by members of the Officers Wives Club at the Officers Open Mess. Members and guests were asked to make their own hats to wear to the event.

The first and second places for the most original hats went to Mrs. Theodore Ebbert and Mrs. Robert Merchant. The most comical creations were worn by Mrs. Holger N. Tof-toy who placed first, and Mrs. Robert Chapman who won second. In the "prettiest" group, Mrs. Peter Kostoff and Mrs. Daniel Thoma took the first and second places.

The winner for the most original hat received the centerpiece from the tea table, and the top winners in the other groups were given potted plants.

Judges for the "show" were Capt. John Szurgot and Capt. Sidney Katz. Mrs. Charles M. Jaco and Mrs. Thoma furnished piano music during the judging.

Pouring coffee were Mrs. Kostoff, Mrs. Jack Oberle, and Mrs. Charles Barrett. Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. Thomas Cooper, Jr., Mrs. Cecil Ramsey, and Mrs. Jaco.

Mrs. Barrett, program chairman, conducted the hat show, and Mrs. Joseph Rush, hospitality chairman, made the tea arrangements.

FT. CAMPBELL, KY. Members of the Reserve Officers Association here have elected new officers. They are: First Lt. Charles G. Provance, post Public Information officer, president; M/Sgt. William P. A brief business meeting was held with Mrs. Charles T. Young presiding. New members introduced were Mrs. Donald Rogers, Mrs. William Riley, Mrs. William Southard and Mrs. Edward Newman.

INDIANTOWN GAP, PA. Col. Frank R. Maerdian, former Chief of Staff of the Korean Military Advisory Group of the 8202d Army Unit, has taken over command of the 11th Infantry Regiment, one of the three training regiments in the 5th Division here. He succeeds Lt. Col. Raymond E. Contee, who has returned to his former job as commander of the 3d Battalion of the 11th Regiment.

LAKE CHARLES AFB, LA. Lt. Col. Davis W. Campbell, jr., one of the early pioneers of Lake Charles AFB, left last week for Barksdale AFB at Shreveport, where he will become Air Installations Officer for the 2d Air Force.

Colonel Campbell first visited the base 19 April 1951, as part of the first advance party from the 44th Bombardment Wing at March AFB, Riverside, Calif. He made the permanent change of stations movement here in June, 1951 with his family. They were the first Air Force family to move into Lake Charles.

RANDOLPH AFB, TEX. The final tabulations of the 1953 March of Dimes revealed that Randolph personnel have once again demonstrated their generosity in supporting worthwhile projects, according to Maj. N. B. Wilkerson, project officer for the 1953 campaign.

Personnel of the 3510th Flying Training Wing, Crew Training Air Force Headquarters, and the School of Aviation Medicine contributed $10,562 to the drive.

FT. BLISS, TEX. The Officers' Wives Club entertained with a Plantation Ball 6 Feb.

Mrs. C. Q. Shelton, president of the Club, was assisted with arrangements for the ball by Mrs. Joseph W. Pettet, who was in charge of entertainment, Mrs. A. H. Bender who was in charge of ticket sales, and Mrs. T. H. Watkins, who was in charge of planning the dinner.

Officers' wives of the Antiaircraft Artillery Replacement Training Center were in charge of table and ballroom decorations, under direction of Mrs. Earl W. Heathcote, and Mrs. E. E. Twining.

LETTERMAN ARMY HOSPITAL, SAN FRANCISCO. Col. Ernest T. Sheen, MSC, has arrived here to become Executive Officer replacing Lt. Col. James H. Mackin, who recently transferred to Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C.

wife, Catherine, who has been residing at Camp Sendal with Colonel Smith, accompanied him. He was Headquarters Commandant, XVI Corps, prior to his departure.

■ FT. LEE, VA. This post topped its 1952 contribution to the March of Dimes by over $1000. Maj. Harold L. Cunningham, chairman of the drive, has announced. The recent drive netted $9,378.43, exceeding last year's figure of $8,030.

The Quartermaster Training Command is looking forward to another drive, the annual Red Cross campaign, to be headed by Maj. Ralph A. Pennington.

■ FT. McPHERSON, GA. A dinner meeting of the Ft. McPherson Chapter Number 60, of the National Sojourners, was held last week.

Officers in the Ft. McPherson chapter are: Col. Clifford J. Mathews, president, Col. John R. Hellams, first vice president, Col. H. E. Blakeley, second vice president, 1st Lt. E. W. Tinsley, secretary, and Capt. Frank D. Proctor, treasurer.

■ ARMY CHEMICAL CENTER, MD. A ladies' hospitality luncheon was held at Gunpowder Mess on 10 Feb. to welcome all newcomers to the post. An interesting feature of the program was a lecture on "The Art of Make-Up" given by a representative of the Tourneur Salon of one of Baltimore's large stores. Mrs. Jose A. Andino, Mrs. Robert Cox, and Mrs. Paul H. Koenig were the hostesses.

Col. John A. MacLaughlin, Retd., a former Chemical Corps officer, has assumed the position of Resident Representative of the University of Maryland at ACC.

■ NORFOLK, VA. The Supply Officers Wives Club poked fun at itself and other women's clubs in a skit which it presented at a luncheon held 19 Feb. at the Norfolk Yacht and Country Club. Cast in the roles of wives attending a women's club meeting were Mrs. James Armacost, Mrs. John Cline, Mrs. Robert Love, Mrs. Lawrence Smith and Mrs. J. Graham.

Mrs. John E. Wood, wife of Rear Admiral Wood, commanding officer of the Norfolk Naval Supply Center, said that Mrs. Lister Sells was chairman of the luncheon committee. Members included Mrs. S. C. St. John, Mrs. W. C. Richardson, Mrs. J. H. Baker, Jr., Mrs. H. Aaron, and Mrs. N. H. Kuhlman.

■ FT. LESLEY J. McNAIR, D. C. The Women's Club of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces met 10 Feb. for their monthly luncheon meeting. The hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Monroe T. Smartt, chairman, Mrs. Carl Damberg, Mrs. Frederick H. Fairchild, Mrs. Edward F. Gallagher, Mrs. John J. Lane, Mrs. James H. Rothrock. As their speaker, they had Mrs. Charles Crosby who gave an illustrated talk on renovation of hats.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Ralph R. Burr entertained about 30 guests Sunday afternoon at a cocktail party and housewarming in their new quarters.

The Post Ladies Evening Bridge Group met Thursday at Mrs. Edward Mattie's quarters, Miss Patricia McAuliffe will be hostess at the next meeting on 5 March.

■ ANNAPOLIS, MD. Mrs. Charles A. Buchanan, wife of Captain Buchanan, Commandant of Midshipmen, has returned after two weeks on the west coast.

The members of the Foreign Language Department of the Naval Academy and their wives met for cocktails and a buffet supper, 12 Feb., at the Officers' Club. Comdr. Harry A. Clark was in charge of arrangements.

Vice Adm. and Mrs. Elliot H. Bryant of King George St., and Dr. and Mrs. James Bass, formerly of Annapolis, left last week for New York to sail for Europe.

Comdr. and Mrs. Walter F. Hinckley of Murray Ave. had as their guests last week, Mr. and Mrs. Elwyn Deakins of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Lt. and Mrs. Robert Gelger of Patuxent River Naval Air Station have been visiting Mrs. Gelger's sister, Mrs. Barbara Godfrey of Southgate Ave.

Capt. and Mrs. Cornelius S. Seabring of Washington were weekend guests recently of Capt. and Mrs. Benjamin P. Field at their quarters aboard the Reina Mercedes.

Mrs. Theodore G. Ellyson has returned from a visit with Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Robert M. Cannon in Washington, and with Mrs. Frank Schwable in Alexandria, Va.

■ FT. LEONARD WOOD, MO. Brig. Gen. William Earl Crist, who is assuming duties as assistant commander of the 6th Armored Division has arrived here.

The post had been without an assistant division commander since the death of Brig. Gen. Branner Pace Purdue late last year. General Crist's last assignment was as Commanding General, United Nations Civil Assistance Command, Korea.

■ VALLEY FORGE ARMY HOSPITAL, PA. Members of the Officers' Wives club were invited to participate in the Second Annual Protestant Preaching Mission here during the week beginning 23 Feb.

The invitation was extended by Mrs. Kenneth A. Brewer, wife of the hospital commander, at the group's regular meeting in the Officers' Open Mess.

The session which featured a buffet lunch-

MISS MARILYN ALICE BUTLER

Army mission there, is the new Ordnance Officer at the Transportation Center. He replaces Lt. Col. Edwin G. Bevan, who has been assigned to the Far East.

Army Boards To Make Temp. Promotion Selection

The Army now is expected to announce next week details concerning convening of selection boards in March to name Regular, National Guard and Reserve officers for temporary promotions to major and captain. Eligible lists of line officers for advancement to these grades have been exhausted.

This week, the Army promoted 54 lieutenant colonels to colonel, effective 18 Feb., and 151 majors to lieutenant colonel, effective 16 Feb.

These promotions extend through number 375 on the recommended list for colonel and 842 on the recommended list for lieutenant colonel.

The selection boards which are scheduled to meet in March probably will use criteria which will extend the zone of consideration by about one year from cut-off dates used in the last selections for temporary promotion.

Promoted this week were 45 Regular and 9 Reserve lieutenant colonels and 52 Regular, 1 National Guard, and 98 Reserve majors. Cut-off date for the promotions to colonel was 15 April 1944 and 27 June 1946 for the promotion to lieutenant colonel.

Text of Sarnoff Commission Report Which Recommends 10% Slash in Military Forces

The following is the complete text of the final report of the Citizen's Advisory Commission on Manpower Utilization in the Armed Services.

Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, commission chairman, said the 10% cut is "minimum target for the Secretary of Defense to set at this time," but warned that "these reductions in manpower and money cannot be made overnight."

Mr. Sarnoff added in a letter to Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson:

"While the Commission has specified the projects which seem to offer the best opportunities for savings and has indicated the main paths to be followed in saving men, money and materiel, it did not consider it practicable to specify in detail the individual items of economy that can be achieved in the various Services of the Department of Defense."

Text of Report

The text of the report follows:

1. The Chairman of the Citizens Advisory Commission on Manpower Utilization in the Armed Services has written three Reports on the work of this Commission, dated 31 December 1952, 16 January 1953 and 9 February 1953. They contain a number of Annexes on pertinent subjects and Minutes of the Commission's meetings in the Pentagon.

2. The three Reports contain information, observations and recommendations on the operations of the Department of Defense, based on our experience in business and in Government. They specify the projects which seem to offer the best opportunities for savings, and indicate the main paths to be followed if the objectives of saving men, money, and materiel are to be reached. In particular, the Chairman's Reports emphasize the basic problems of organization and management that must be dealt with at the highest levels in the Defense Department.

3. The Members of the Commission functioned at different times and in areas of their special knowledge. The Chairman functioned continuously. His reports summarize the activities of the Commission from the time of its organization to date.

4. These Reports discuss the basic problems of policy, organization, management, supervision, and control in the Department of Defense. They point out the need for clarification of Civilian and Military authority and indicate the laws which appear to restrict economical operations of the Military Establishment.

5. The Chairman's three Reports and his communications to the Secretary of Defense (included in these Reports) reflect his own views as well as the views of his associates on this Commission. Therefore, we resubmit them herewith as part of this final Report to the Secretary of Defense.

10% Minimum Cut

6. This Commission shares the Chairman's opinion that an over-all reduction of at least 10 per cent in men, money, and materiel can be achieved in the operations of the Department of Defense, without diminishing the required combat effectiveness of our Armed Forces. We recommend this as a minimum Target for the Secretary of Defense to set at this time and recognize that this reduction in Manpower and money cannot be made overnight.

7. Based on the present military program this reduction would mean possible savings of at least 500,000 in Civilian and Military Manpower, and 5 billion dollars annually. Of course, such reductions could not be made if, for reasons beyond our control, the requirements of National Defense called for expanding our present military program. Whatever its size may have to be, it is evident that if waste and unnecessary duplication are eliminated and if higher efficiency is obtained, it will take less men and cost less money to do the job.

8. In seeking a path for its studies, the Commission set itself the task of finding how savings of men, money, and materiel could be made in the operations of the Department of Defense. In pursuing this course, the Commission soon found that the important subject of Manpower is but one aspect of the problem. There are other aspects which affect substantially the total number of men and the total amount of money needed to do the job.

Top Level Action

9. To secure greater economy and increased efficiency in the operations of our Military Establishment requires action that must begin at the levels where policies are made. Also, supervision and control of operations must be strengthened at the higher levels if the policies are to be effectively carried out in practice at the lower levels.

10. In this connection, we quote from the Chairman's Reports and communications to the Secretary of Defense:

"To submit constructive recommendations that would save men, money, and materiel, in the operations of the Department of Defense as a whole, requires a 'top-to-bottom' survey in the Pentagon and in the field. Obviously, such a comprehensive survey must include consideration of such subjects as Missions, Organization, Management, Control, Supervision, Incentives, Morale, Budgeting, Legislation, et cetera. . . .

"From a review of these reports, as well as those made previously by others who studied the problems of the Defense Department and submitted their findings and recommendations, it is evident that the Secretary of Defense is not short of advice on what needs to be done. His problem is not how to get more advice, but how to get action; how to get things done in a practical way without throwing the machine out of gear and without diminishing the combat effectiveness of our Armed Forces.

"To accomplish such results, it is vitally necessary that there be a WILL to achieve them at all levels in the Department of Defense, including those in the best positions to implement top level decisions and to control and supervise day-to-day operations. Given such a WILL, clear and firm decisions at the top can produce increased efficiencies and decreased costs in our Military Establishment more quickly than can be achieved in any other way."

Unification Must Be Extended

11. Our studies and observations have convinced us that Unification of the Armed Services thus far has been achieved only in part. It must be extended much further if the benefits expected from Unification are to be realized.

12. The Commission is of the opinion that to achieve increased efficiency and decreased cost, it is essential for the Secretary of Defense to set up a specific TARGET and to call upon the Service Secretaries and their subordinates to submit specific recommendations of how this goal can best be reached without diminishing the combat effectiveness of our Armed Forces. Those responsible for day-to-day operations in the Department of Defense are in the best position to make such specific recommendations. And only those at the top who have the final authority are in a position to reject or accept the recommendations and to obtain the required action.

13. Now that the new Secretary of Defense, his Deputy Secretary, Assistant Secretaries and Service Secretaries have assumed their duties, we believe it prudent that this Citizens Commission, which is only advisory in character and quite properly without any authority to act, should bring its labors to a close with the submission of this final Report to the Secretary of Defense.

14. We feel that the Secretary of Defense and the Operating Heads in his Department are fully competent to pass judgment on the views, suggestions and recommendations contained in these Reports. Since the Executives of the Department of Defense must bear the responsibility for such decisions and actions as they may take, they should have the time needed to consider and evaluate the contents of the Commission's Reports and to be free to determine the actions to be taken and the procedures to be followed.

Period of Transition

15. The work of this Commission proved more than normally difficult because it was done during a period of transition from the old Administration to the new—a period during which basic questions of policy and organization affecting the future of the Department of Defense remained undetermined. As an example, we cite the illuminating letter on this subject by former Secretary of Defense Lovett to ex-President Truman dated 18 November 1952 and released to the public on 8 January 1953.

16. We take this opportunity to thank the ex-President and the President of the United States, the former and present Secretary of the Department of Defense and all those in the Department who have assisted us in our studies and our work, for the privilege of serving our Country on its vital problems of National Security and National Economy.

17. Copies of all the Reports were sent by the Chairman to each Member of the Commission and to Secretary of Defense Wilson, Deputy-Secretary Kyes, Assistant Secretary Hannah, Assistant Secretary McNeil, Secretary of the Army Stevens, Secretary of the Navy Anderson and Secretary of the Air Force Talbott. With the exception of Report III, (written after their departure from the Pentagon) they were also sent to former Secretary of Defense Lovett, Deputy Secretary Foster and Assistant Secretary Rosenberg.

18. We submit our Report to the Secretary of Defense in accordance with provisions of Paragraph D of the Department's Directive No. 5120.7 of 22 October 1952 under which this Commission was established. Having discharged our immediate assignment under this Directive, and believing as we do, that the next phase calls for authoritative decision and action—which are properly not with-

In the scope of an advisory body—we respectfully request that the Chairman and all other members of the Commission be relieved from further duties and responsibilities.

Mr. Wilson's Statement

The following is the text of Secretary Wilson's statement following receipt of the commission's report and after he had discussed the subject with General Sarnoff, Deputy Secretary Roger M. Kyes and Assistant Secretary of Defense John A. Hannah:

"I see Mr. Sarnoff and his fellow members go with great regret because they have worked hard and effectively since their appointment on 22 October 1952. They accepted the appointment from an Administration that was ending its term of office in order to get to the heart of the matter without delay, regardless of the outcome of the election.

"President Eisenhower issued a statement soon after his election expressing his full sympathy with the purposes and objectives for which the Commission had been created and his belief that its studies and recommendations would be helpful to the new Congress and to the new Administration.

"I feel sure that the Commission has worked hard to justify President Eisenhower's attitude.

"I agree with Mr. Sarnoff that the responsibility for decisions and actions rests squarely upon the top echelons of the Department of Defense. As he points out, we have advice galore. It will now be up to us to consider this advice carefully and to take such actions as seem justified.

"Without passing judgment on the findings of the Commission, I feel sure that their inquiry is bound to be of great value. The Department of Defense is grateful to the Chairman and to each member of the Citizens Advisory Commission.

"I have sent the reports of the Commission to the Senate Armed Services Committee, under the Chairmanship of Senator Leverett Saltonstall, of Massachusetts. It was a subcommittee of that body, the subcommittee chairman then being Senator Lyndon B. Johnson, of Texas, which requested that a Citizens Advisory Commission be called into being.

"Since the Commission has discharged its immediate assignment, Mr. Sarnoff and his fellow members have asked to be freed from further duties and responsibilities. This I have agreed to, but I have asked that they hold themselves open to any call I may make upon them for additional advice, so that the result of their present effort as well as their knowledge and experience may be of further benefit to the country."

Commission Members

The members of the Commission were: Sarnoff, David, Chairman, Chairman of the Board, Radio Corp. of America.

New Hamilton Prop Built For USN's Lockheed R7V-2

A new aircraft propeller incorporating the widest blades ever built has been placed in limited production by Hamilton Standard Division of United Aircraft Corporation. Erle Martin, general manager, asserted that the new propeller, when mounted on a 5,500 horsepower Pratt & Whitney Aircraft T-34 turboprop engine, will give more propulsive thrust for take-off than any other propeller-engine combination in a similar advanced stage of development.

The propeller has been selected by the Navy for its R7V-2 turboprop version of the Lockheed Super-Constellation transport, which will fly this year. Considerable performance increases of the airplane over its piston-engined counterpart are expected by the Navy and Lockheed.

The blades are of hollow steel supported internally by a steel core. Air spaces are filled with a vulcanized synthetic sponge for additional support.

Designed initially for engines in the 5,000 horsepower class, the new propeller is the first of a line of propellers which, it is claimed, in various combinations of numbers of blades, can be adapted for engines of more than 9,000 horsepower and airplane speeds of more than 500 miles an hour.

Lightweight Stretcher

A lightweight, collapsible stretcher to transport battle casualties has been developed for the Canadian Army. Made of aluminum alloys, the stretcher folds and telescopes into a small package which can be easily carried or strapped to the back.

Gen. R. J. Smith on Bank Bd.

The Federal Reserve Bank vacancy created by the appointment of Robert B. Anderson as Secretary of the Navy has been filled by Brig. Gen. Robert J. Smith, USAFR. General Smith, president of Pioneer Air Lines, was appointed a member and deputy chairman of the Board of Directors, 11th District of the Federal Reserve Bank.

General Smith was commissioned a lieutenant colonel in the Army Air Force at the beginning of World War II and advanced through the grades to brigadier general. He was discharged in 1945, and shortly thereafter commissioned in the Air Force Reserves.

Offers Data on Schools

Continental Schools, Inc., has been established under the direction of Lt. Col. Henry R. Brewerton, USA-Ret., for the purpose of giving information and guidance to parents in selecting a private school, college or summer camp in the United States for their child.

Colonel Brewerton, a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy class of '40, became Director of Guidance and Registrar at Valley Forge Military Academy in Wayne, Pa., after his retirement from the Service in 1945. Colonel Brewerton was born and raised in Balboa, Canal Zone, speaks Spanish, and has travelled a great deal in the Latin American countries.

The main office of Continental Schools, Inc., is in Room 302, The Professional Building, Santurce, Puerto Rico, and is located there to assist children from the Latin American countries and also any Americans in these countries who may be seeking information. A branch office is located in Room 603, The Medical Science Building, 1029 Vermont Avenue, N.W., Washington, D. C., for the convenience of anyone interested in the services offered in the Washington, D. C., area. No charge is made to parents seeking information.

First Canadian Built T-33 "Silver Star" Goes to RCAF

On behalf of the Department of National Defense and the Royal Canadian Air Force, Defense Minister Brooke Claxton on 12 Feb. accepted delivery of the first Lockheed T-33 jet trainer built in Canada by Canadair Limited in Montreal.

Mr. Claxton named the Canadian version of the Lockheed jet the "Silver Star," a combination of names from two earlier planes. One is the "Silver Dart" which was the name of a 50-horsepower biplane which made the first aircraft flight in Canada at Baddeck Bay, Nova Scotia, on 23 Feb. 1909. The other is the Lockheed F-80 "Shooting Star" from which Lockheed developed the T-33 trainer five years ago.

J. Geoffrey Notman, president and general manager of Canadair, introduced Mr. Claxton, who flew to Montreal from Ottawa for the ceremony at the big Canadair plant in suburban Cartierville. The defense minister was accompanied by Air Marshal C. R. Slemon, chief of staff of the Royal Canadian Air Force, and Air Vice Marshal A. L. James, chief of the Air Defense Command.

Also present for the delivery of the first aircraft were Dr. Eric Warlow-Davies, general manager of Rolls-Royce of Canada, which will build the British-designed Nene engines for the Canadian T-33, and Admiral L. B. Richardson, USN-(Ret.) of New York City, Canadair board vice chairman. Canada will use the Lockheed T-33 to train jet fighter pilots for the RCAF.

Armed Services Committee.

The Manpower Commission was created at the demand of the Senate Preparedness Committee, headed by Senator Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.) during the 82d Congress. He is now minority leader in the Senate. The Preparedness Subcommittee has been extended until March 17.

On the opposite side of Capitol Hill, Representative Dewey Short (R-Mo.), chairman of the House Armed Service Committee, told THE JOURNAL that he is in favor of the 10 per cent reduction only "if it could be done without affecting our security."

"I am in favor of making every possible saving. The objective is good," Congressman Short continued, "but I want to read the report carefully."

"I am interested in it and want to make every possible saving," he emphasized, but said that before reaching any definite conclusion he wants to consult General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the other Service chiefs.

"I am sure they have not been consulted about this," said Representative Short. "I am going to call them for consultation."

It was learned that Secretary Wilson phoned Mr. Short the night of 18 Feb., after it had been disclosed that copies of the report had been transmitted

Convair's R3Y Flying Boat Is Christened 'Tradewind'

Convair's R3Y turboprop transport seaplane, called the "fastest big flying boat in aviation's 50-year history," has been officially named "Tradewind."

Convair President Lt. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, USAF-Ret., announced that the name had been assigned by the Munitions Board in Washington, with Navy Bureau of Aeronautics approval.

"Tradewind" was top choice among several thousand entries submitted by Convair employees in a company-wide R3Y naming contest judged by Vice Adm. H. M. Martin, commanding Pacific Fleet Air Force; A. M. Sanders, San Diego Chapter president, Navy League of the United States, and T. G. Lanphier, Jr., Convair vice president-planning.

Pressurized for high altitude cargo-transport operations, the long range R3Y has over 350 miles per hour maximum speed, takes off within 30 seconds in a calm and has a rate of climb exceeding many World War II fighters. Its four Allison T40 gas turbine engines develop 5500 horsepower each and swing contra-rotating Aeroproducts propellers.

earlier to Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, and Senator Johnson. Mr. Short also was given a copy of the report this week, which was turned over to Mr. Robert Smart, chief counsel of the House Armed Services Committee, for detailed analysis.

The Manpower Commission meantime has concluded its work, notwithstanding the announcement late last year that the study might take up to two years to accomplish.

All together, the Commission held four meetings and a study of documents made available this week shows that at no meeting were all the members present.

A major statement, which was an apparent prelude to the release of the Commission's final report this week, was a statement made by Chairman Sarnoff on 31 Dec.

First Objective

General Sarnoff told members on 31 Dec. that in his personal opinion "a 10 per cent reduction in men, money and material can be achieved . . . This target should be the Commission's first objective," he said.

It was in this statement that General Sarnoff observed that the 10 per cent savings, or $5 billion, "could mean the difference between a balanced and unbalanced National Budget."

General Sarnoff contended that the manpower reduction "would have a vital and beneficial effect on the manpower requirements of the Military Services, either by enabling release of men in the Service, or by reducing draft calls for additional men—to the extent of the savings effected."

He told his fellow Commission members that "there is evidence, even on the surface, that 'plush and extravagance' have crept into all our Military Services, in varying degrees. This does not add, but subtracts from their combat effectiveness," he said.

"Our standards should be reasonable and adequate, as befits a great and democratic nation," General Sarnoff continued, "but we cannot afford plush and extravagance. They must be located and removed wherever they exist."

No Extensive Studies

In this statement, General Sarnoff conceded that "the five-week period of the Commission's life (the first meeting was held 25 Nov.) is obviously too short a time in which to have made extensive studies, to have held detailed discussions with the Services and to inspect operations in the field."

"Nor have we thus far been equipped with adequate facilities and an effective technical staff required for a job of this complexity and magnitude."

General Sarnoff said that the five-week period preceding the year-end summation "may be regarded by the Commission as a 'Period of Orientation,' in preparation for the tasks ahead."

Subsequently, the Commission held one meeting and then submitted its findings in a final report.

Brig. Gen. C. R. Smith, USAFR, president of American Airlines, said he could not endorse the report entirely because "I cannot be certain as to the number of men or the number of dollars which might be saved through better administration."

Unification

Rear Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, USNR (inact.) said he could not endorse the statement that Unification "must be extended much farther" without contradicting the viewpoint he took as a member of the Hoover Commission task force on National Defense in 1948 (see page 736).

Although the Commission last year had made plans for field investigations—Europe and Korea were mentioned prominently—the Commission made no on-the-spot studies, either in the Zone of Interior or overseas.

For most of its active service, the Commission was without a permanent technical staff director, owing to the illness of Maj. Gen. Merrill B. Twining, USMC, who is ill. Col. Charles Seebach, USAF, the deputy, was acting staff director.

In response to inquiries, Defense officials reported that neither the Secretaries of the Army, Navy or Air Force, nor the military chiefs of the Services appeared before the Commission to present an over-all picture of the manpower situation.

General Sarnoff, however, is known to have conferred informally with top Pentagon officials. He worked steadily on the manpower study during the Commission's active service.

As the week came to an end, it was obvious that the next move was up to Secretary Wilson, who acknowledged this responsibility in a statement issued when he accepted the Commission's report:

"I agree with Mr. Sarnoff," said Mr. Wilson, "that the responsibility for decisions and actions rests squarely upon the top echelons of the Department of Defense."

"As he points out, we have advice galore. It will now be up to us to consider this advice carefully and to take such actions as seem justified."

Foreign Review

if one can be given, France's anxieties might be reduced, and her demands brought within reason. And as those demands are made more reasonable, West German counter-demands may also be shrunk back to size. In this enterprise, one gathers, the American envoys (James B. Conant, U. S. High Commissioner at Bonn, and C. Douglas Dillon, U. S. Ambassador at Paris) are expected to serve as intermediaries, if asked, in much the same way that their predecessors, John J. McCloy and David K. E. Bruce, did on many occasions.

But it is apparent that all the good will of Schuman's group (certainly strengthened in public esteem by the fact that the Schuman economic plan is operating successfully) is insufficient in itself to win over the support of large French elements who remain suspicious of a Germany of the future. The corollary is equally true. If, therefore, more solid pledges of Britain's support in emergency can quell French worries, and reduce the French revisions of the EDC treaty, something very large will have been achieved.

East Germany continues to erect physical barriers and potential traffic-blocks along the Berlin border, nominally to hamper the stream of fugitives still rushing out of Communist territory into West Berlin. It always is possible something of more serious import to that courageous city is in prospect, but it is not yet identifiable.

Denmark, which lately lifted the draft period from 12 to 18 months, this week encountered its first "mutiny," when a group of youthful conscripts from South Jutland set out on an unauthorized march, without arms, to protest the prolongation of service, announcing their intent of reaching the larger barracks near Copenhagen and gaining recruits. They ignored their camp commander's orders and those of a police chief, but soon ran head-on into Maj. Gen. Richard Allerup, commander of the Danish-German frontier forces. That veteran halted the parade and after making some forceful remarks ordered the youths to keep in formation but go back to barracks. All obeyed save one, whom General Allerup picked up bodily and threw into a truck for further attention. Denmark has not had a military tradition for several generations, but this episode is not taken seriously.

Armor and Artillery came into being as three staff sections. A general officer was designated in each Inspector's post. Two of these spaces had to be eliminated and subsequently General Hodge reorganized the sections into a group under one general officer, and named it the Combat Arms Advisory Group.

General Hodge has insisted that the group emphasize assistance to units in the field in solving their training problems and that the concept of its operations not envisage "inspectors" out to "skin." This principle has been incorporated into the current Staff Memorandum on Training Inspections and Staff Visits which states, "It is emphasized that the attitude of visiting officers will be one of helpfulness to commanders. Visiting officers will attempt to learn the unit's problems and offer constructive criticism where applicable."

The group is directly responsible to the Chief of Army Field Forces, through inspections, to analyze the adequacy of current concepts and policies pertaining to personnel, intelligence, plans, operations, organization and training, logistics, weapons, and equipment of the three combat arms. It is particularly concerned with determining the degree of readiness of tactical units for combat operations.

In accomplishing this, the Combat Arms Advisory Group in no way duplicates the functions of the various Army Field Forces Boards or Service schools as the primary source of advice and recommendation to the Chief of Army Field Forces in matters of doctrine and materiel. Instead, the group is a special representative of the Chief and advises him in matters pertaining to the specific interests of the Infantry, Armor, and Artillery branches.

Schedule of Visits

Out of necessity, group staff officers spend most of their time in the field. Most units are visited or inspected on a regular schedule; approximately two per unit per year. However, if a unit is alerted, or if deficiencies or problems arise, additional visits are authorized.

Inspection SOP is comparatively simple. After routine arrangements are made, an officer who is scheduled to visit a unit, for example, may send a questionnaire designed to obtain necessary statistical information from the unit to be inspected. This is done at least a week before the arrival of the officer at the post. On arrival, the OCAFF officer calls on the station or unit commander, stating the purpose of his visit and asking for assistance in accomplishing his mission. As the inspection is conducted, the state of training is observed and changes since the previous visit noted. This is followed by a closing conference with the senior local commander of the unit visited. Training is discussed, problems brought out during the tour are considered, and ways and means of assisting the unit in solving its problems are discussed.

Upon his return to OCAFF, the inspecting officer makes a complete report on the results of his trip. During the preparation of the report, informal conferences with interested staff sections are held to determine current status of subjects under consideration and other details affecting the content of the report. A brief summary with recommendations to the Chief is attached to the report. Copies of the report are sent to the major commanders concerned for their information.

Reports Circulated

Copies of the report, including the summary, are sent to the Assistant Chief of Staff, G3 (Training), OCAFF, and other staff sections involved. Reports requiring action by Special Staff sections are routed through the appropriate general staff coordinating section. The Combat Arms Advisory Group maintains a follow-up system for checking on accomplishment of actions and recommendations. The chiefs of the various staff sections then review the reports, and accomplish necessary action.

Of the many accomplishments of this group, perhaps most noticeable is the increase in the effectiveness of Infantry-Armor-Artillery cooperation in tactical units throughout the Army. Last winter when General Hodge visited the Korean battlefield, he took with him AFF's Observer Team Number 7 to study and examine combat conditions to determine whether training in the United States was effective and up-to-date. Comprising the Observer Team were some officers of the Combat Arms Advisory Group. Results of that trip have contributed materially to all Army training, thus producing combat soldiers with the qualifications required by today's field Army. Similar inspection trips are made annually in Europe to determine the status of training and operational readiness of United States Army units there.

The Combat Arms Advisory Group has been an outstanding supporting element in the interests of the Combat Arms on the staff of the Chief of Army Field Forces. This support has marked achievements both in the training of the combat units of our Army as well as in the fighting ability of our team in Korea.

Study Dept. Organization

said in Baltimore on 25 Sept. 1952:

"At the earliest possible date next year, the new administration should create a commission of the most capable civilians in our land to restudy the operations of our Department of Defense.

"These men and women should, of course, be specifically qualified for their tasks. They should, I believe, be drawn from both parties, so that all matters of national security may clearly be placed beyond party politics. These men and women should be assisted by the ablest officers available from all the Services—Air Force, Army, Navy and Marine Corps."

Announcing creation of the Committee, Secretary Wilson said he recognized that the attainment of maximum efficiency in an organization involving millions of men and women and highly diversified activities must necessarily be an evolutionary process taking into account the problems that exist, the men available to handle the various positions and functions and laws, rules, regulations and precedents that may apply to them.

"At the same time, the entire defense organization must be dedicated to the purpose of achieving maximum security for the nation at minimum cost," he said.

He added that the objective of the committee would be to assist the Secretary of Defense in working out a streamlined organization and effective procedures for efficiently handling the highly diversified activities of the Defense Dept.

"This will require definition of authority, clarification of responsibility, proper channels of cooperation, methods for obtaining the facts, procedures for developing sound policies and clearly recognized channels for making prompt decision.

"Only thus, can the great responsibilities of the Defense Dept. be properly discharged."

Shortage in Candidates For Flight Training

Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps sources:

AIR FORCE—Faced with the necessity to begin inputs for training of 10,000 pilots a year beginning in a few months, the Air Force this week reduced further its qualifications for aviation cadets. Heretofore, two years of college was required; now, civilian high school graduates will be eligible.

The Air Force has intensified its campaign to obtain more volunteers for flying training from the ROTC program, thus stepping up its ratio of college graduate fliers. But up to now, the relative number of ROTC graduates asking for flying training instead of other officer duties has been disappointingly low.

To stimulate flying training interest among AFROTC graduates, 18 Korean Air War veteran pilots this week began visits to AFROTC detachments, according to Brig. Gen. M. K. Deichmann, AFROTC Commandant.

The young pilots, all lieutenants, will conduct informal talks with the advanced students at 200 detachments located throughout the U. S., Hawaii, and Puerto Rico on their experiences while in flight training and descriptions of their present flying duties.

Hand-picked, the majority of the group are college graduates, and they will visit their own school as well as others in their home area during their 90-day TDY with AFROTC.

General Deichmann said: "Last year only 12 per cent of our graduates took flight training upon graduation. This year we have high hopes of raising this percentage considerably."

Prior to leaving AFROTC headquarters this week, the pilots, all in their early twenties, were thoroughly briefed on the AFROTC program by Col. Roy Hillyer, project officer for the event, and other members of the headquarters staff. Subjects to be covered in the talks include experiences at flying school, status as a student officer, advantages in an Air Force career, his Korean experiences, and other related subjects designed to increase interest in flying.

The Air Force feels that it will be able to fill its pilot classes from now until September provided that 2,000 applications are received from the ROTC.

But, in the words of Lt. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel:

"We are approaching a critical situation with regard to the aircraft observer program. The current pool of aircraft observer applicants is sufficient to fill the training classes through March 1953.

"Response to this program has dropped to such an extent," says General Kuter, "that immediate action is required to preclude short class entries during April and later months."

Coincidental with the Air Force's reluctant decision to permit civilian high school graduates to apply for aviation cadets is the disclosure by Air Training Command officials that efforts are underway to boost the pay of cadets.

At the present time, ATRC authorities report, a man attending Officer Candidate School receives a minimum of $145.24 per month, whereas base pay of an aviation cadet is $109.20.

The Air Force problem will become increasingly acute for two reasons: (1) the expansion of wing strength from the present force of about 100 to the goal of 143; and (2) the concurrent release from active duty of Reservists completing tours of duty.

What can be expected, therefore, is an energetic program aimed at stimulating flying interest in young men of high school and college age. This year will be a propitious one for such a program, since the 50th anniversary of powered flight will be celebrated throughout the country.

THE NAVY now has about 17,000 aviators on active duty—9,500 of them Regulars and 7,500 Reserves. Projected needs for fiscal year '54 are placed at about 18,500, but many will be leaving the Service because of the expiration of tours of duty.

During the first five months of fiscal '53, Naval officials report, the in-put of new aviators averaged about 40 a month.

It is known that Naval officials testifying before the Incentive Pay Commission told of difficulties being experienced in interesting young men in careers as naval fliers.

The last semi-annual report of the Secretary of the Navy declared that "the shortage of Naval aviators, particularly in the junior ranks, continues to be critical."

The Secretary commented:

"The Naval aviator training program is being expanded as quickly as possible to the level required to meet the needs of both the Navy and Marine Corps.

"During the fiscal year 1952 the total was several hundred below the authorized number, and even with a larger authorization for fiscal year 1953 the situation is not expected to be rectified in less than 12 to 18 months."

THE MARINE CORPS, reported the Secretary, appears destined for a pilot shortage during the next several years.

He said that "indications are at this time that the Naval Pilot Training Program, the source of newly-trained pilots for the Marine Corps, will fall far short of providing the necessary numbers of pilot graduates for the Marine Corps for several years."

At the present time, the Marine Corps has about 4,800 pilots on active duty—less than half of whom are Regulars, which means that there will be need for many replacements in the next two years.

Figures on how many pilots are required were not available.

The present in-put of pilots is reported about 30 a month, 25 of which come from the Naval Cadet program.

USMC Lieutenant Colonels

to promotion to colonel. Pending consideration of this concept," he noted, "the Commandant has withheld promotion to colonel." No board was convened during 1952.

The Marine Deputy Chief of Staff strongly defended the need for more high ranking officers in the Marine Corps today than it had during World War II. This point has been the subject of considerable debate in the Congress with regard to all four Services.

WWII Comparison

"In 1945," General Wensinger said, "the Marine Corps had 81 general officers, 399 colonels, and 1,095 lieutenant colonels." It now has 59 general officers, 516 colonels and 1,200 lieutenant colonels, but billet requirements for 64 generals, 546 colonels and 1,350 lieutenant colonels.

The main reasons "for what might appear to be an unwarranted or disproportionate revision of Marine Corps officer requirements," he explained, are these:

"In 1945 we were confronted with full wartime mobilization. The function of training and administering the inactive-duty Reserve was practically nonexistent. The requirement for military attaches was radically reduced. Fewer personnel were required in connection with research and development.

"The second reason is that many new functions have arisen since World War II which require the services of experienced Marine officers. The Department of Defense, the various military assistance advisory groups, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and other similar activities had no counterpart during World War II." Today, he said, the Corps requires four generals, 154 colonels and 248 lieutenant colonels to perform new or peacetime functions which did not exist in 1945.

He noted that within the short space of time since the Congress approved the three-division, three-air wing force for the Marines, "three new billets for general officers have developed. They are: Chief of the Military Assistance Advisory Group, Netherlands; General Inspector on the Staff, U. S. Commander-in-Chief, Europe; and Director of the Staff, Joint Inter-American Defense Board."

He noted also that the Corps had 399 colonels in 1945 and that it now has 516. Of the present colonels' billets, however, 154 had no counterpart in 1945. "This 154," he said, "if added to the 399 in 1945 amounts to 553."

In addition, he pointed out that there are now 248 lieutenant colonels' billets which were not required in 1945. "It must be borne in mind," he said, "that the current requirements for officers in grades of lieutenant colonel and above represent a net reduction of 21 officers from the World War II structure, after you deduct the 406 new and peacetime billets."

In comparing 1945 figures with 1953 requirements, General Wensinger said, "it does not follow that for six divisions we need six times as many officers as we need for one division. Nor does it follow that for a Marine Corps of some 485,000, which we had in 1945, that we can reduce our officer requirements by 50 per cent because we have a Marine Corps today of approximately one-half that size."
